COLE DEMANDS NEW FIRE LAWS

KNOWLES LACONIC ON LIFE IN WOODS, FINDS TONGUE ON GREETING

In today's instalment of Joe Knowles' lecture "My Life in the Woods as a Primitive Man" Knowles tells in great detail, not of his life in the woods but of his reception at the little town of Megantic in Quebec.

Knowles in his lecture is devoting just 948 words to what he says he did in the woods, while the rest of his lecture of 4,614 words is given over to discussing why he went into the woods to generally well-known and non-debatable facts about trees and birds, and to his reception after he left the woods.

In that portion of his lecture given today Knowles offers to bet anyone $20,000 that he can take three to six men into the woods for two months and live as he has said he lived in his stories. Knowles says it is up to the doubters to put up the money for the return trip into the woods.

Knowles concludes his lecture by offering to answer questions from the audience. Just how Knowles made good when one member of that Bangor audience stood up and asked Knowles a question about how he killed the deer, will be told in tomorrow's AMERICAN.

CONDUCTOR PAYS HIS FARE.

Well, I was glad to know that. It was a good place to wait. I would rather meet the Maine wardens in Canada than in Maine, but I will say I have never met a better crowd of people than these game wardens—they are white fellows.

The conductor said: "Have you got enough money to pay your fare?" I said, "Where should I get money?" He said: "I will give you fifty cents for your fare." And that reminds me that I haven't paid him back yet, but I will send him the money and at the same time I will send him a nice letter. There were three people in the car when I got into it. I took one look at the seats with soft cushions. Then I got into that seat with the thought of enjoying civilization until we got to Megantic. Before we reached Megantic I think every one in that train came into my car. Everyone asked questions. I could not answer them all. I simply sat still and listened and let everybody else do the talking.

When I got to Megantic I could see there were some people in Megantic, more people than I had seen in the last two months. Their voices sounded good to me. I got out on the platform and my

Women of the Cabinet Join Egg War

RUSSELL INQUIRY REFUSED

"We are going into the East Cambridge Probate Court and will fight to break the William C. Russell will," declared William R. Scharton, attorney for "Dakota Dan," today.

An important development in the famous Russell case today was the flat refusal of District Attorney Joan J. Higgins of Middlesex County to allow medical experts in the employ of "Dakota Dan" to examine the brain and internal organs of the late Melrose recluse. "Dakota Dan" claims that William C. Russell has been "failing" for years and in his weak condition was easily influenced."

Attorney Scharton began his attack on the will of William C. Russell by saying: "To my mind this will does not and could not express the real purpose of William C. Russell. Read it over. You see half the estate, believed to be $125,000, is left to "Fresno Dan." Ferdinand B. Almy is to get $25,000 to be paid to "Fresno" for his maintenance.

Ridicules Clause.

"Now isn't that a foolish proposition. Give a man $125,000 and then support him by weekly allotments of $8 or $10. From another fund of $25,000 from which must be paid the trustee for his work. Why the man would have hardly enough to subsist on."

Attorney Scharton then launched into an attack on what he termed "Fresno Dan's "illiteracy." He said:

"If what I have read in the papers is correct Fresno Dan is illiterate and has proved by such illiteracy that he could not possibly be a member of the distinguished Russell family of Melrose. He declares 'Melrose is full of old hens.' You never heard 'Dakota Dan' talking of people in that sort of language."

All motions pending in the Daniel Russell will case will be heard in the Supreme Court by Judge Sheldon, December.

CAPITAL BOYCOTTS HIGH EGGS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Wives of cabinet members have enlisted in the army of women which is fighting the high price of eggs and it was learned today that this article of food will be banished in the future from the tables in the homes of President Wilson's official family.

Mrs. William Jennings Bryan, in joining the boycott, said:

"Any subject which touches the home touches the heart of every woman, whether she is."

Pledges have been received from Mrs. Lindley M. Garrison, wife of the Secretary of War; Mrs. Burleson, wife of the Postmaster General; Mrs. Wilson, wife of the Secretary of Labor, and Mrs. Houston, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture. It is expected that 25,000 names will have been signed to the "boycott pledge" by Monday.

Imported Eggs Undersell Native.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—An agent for the United States Department of Justice got evidence here to show that European eggs are now selling in this city cheaper than American eggs. The evidence gathered covers all kinds. For instance, eggs from cold storage houses in Europe are being imported here for 20 to 22 cents a dozen; they are being sold to the trade at 25 cents a dozen; and consumers are getting them at 28 to 30 cents a dozen.

At the same time fresh eggs from Europe are selling here to the trade at 38 cents a dozen, and consumers are buying them at 33 cents a dozen.

Campaign for Hen Efficiency.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Not satisfied with the ten cent drop resulting from the whispered boycott on eggs, women of Chicago today planned a campaign for greater hen efficiency. L. E. Young, vice-president of the Illinois Farmers' Institute was the author of the scheme for teaching farmers to provide Summer conditions for hens in Winter and inducing them to produce eggs in larger quantities during the cold months.

Cole Emphasizes Need of City Chief of Public Safety

Fire Commissioner Charles H. Cole favors:

A commissioner of public safety under whom would come the fire department, buildings department, penal institutions department, wire department and police department.

Give this commissioner proper laws and the power to cope with the situation and hold him responsible for the enforcement of all the laws relative to the public safety.

Orders then given to a department head would have a record of the carrying out of that order.

APPALLING PERIL OF FIRETRAPS

Fire Commissioner Charles H. Cole, in an interview with the AMERICAN today, endorses the position of Mayor Fitzgerald on the necessity of better fire laws and even declared his opinion that the holocaust at the Arcadia lodging house could have been avoided if the Massachusetts Legislature had enacted bills that have been before it for fire prevention and protection.

Negligence Charged.

The commissioner accused the Legislature of flat negligence in failing to legislate properly for Boston's fire hazard. He said:

"If the Legislature had passed several bills that have been before them in years past, I don't believe the deaths of twenty-eight men would have resulted at the fire at the Arcadia House on Tuesday morning.

"I had, with the aid of Mayor Fitzgerald, a bill prepared calling for the transfer of the powers now vested in several licensing bodies regarding the storage of explosives to the fire commissioner of Boston," said Commissioner Cole.

"Every member of the House and Senate Committee was taken personally by me and officers of the fire department and shown fire hazards that existed this year and that still exist in the city of Boston.

"This bill passed the House but was killed in the Senate and no reason given.

"I have been in consultation with Corporation Counsel Joseph J. Corbett and Mayor Fitzgerald, and the bill will again be put up to the Massachusetts Legislature. It is high time for the people of Boston to get busy to agitate this question of fire prevention.

Campaign of Education.

"It ought to be a campaign of education from now out. The time to do this is when everybody is sane and conserva-

KAISER ORDERS ALSACE TROOPS WITHDRAWN

BERLIN, Dec. 5.—Emperor William today ordered the garrison at Zabern, Alsace, to cease its manoeuvres because of the trouble between the troops and the townspeople. He further ordered court martial proceedings against soldiers who offended civilians to be hastened.

The existence of a "Chancellor crisis" was denied this morning by officials in close touch with the Imperial chancellor, Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg. They declared he had no intention of resigning office in connection with the conflict between the military and civilians in Alsace. The relinquishment of his post by the governor-general of Alsace-Lorraine, Count Charles von Wedel, however, is considered probable unless his authority be fully restored and protest against the aggressions of the military officials in the annexed province.

Rules Hearse Is Not a Pleasure Vehicle

Judge Bruce Fines Driver $10 for Boulevard Offence.

A hearse is not a pleasure vehicle was the ruling of Judge Bruce of Malden today when he imposed a fine of $10 upon Michael J. Carroll of Roxbury for driving a motor-hearse over the Fellsway Boulevard in Medford.

Judge Bruce held, however, that three black limousine cars in which were the mourners in the auto-funeral that Carroll headed, could not come under the Metropolitan Park Commission ruling which excludes all but pleasure vehicles from the boulevards.

Kenny Suspends While Mayor Is Ill

Candidate Cancels Rallies; Is Endorsed by Republicans.

Owing to the illness of Mayor Fitzgerald, Councillor Thomas J. Kenny was acting Mayor today. He signed several documents. In an interview he said:

"While the Mayor is ill I shall suspend all activity in my campaign. My rallies have been cancelled. The Mayor's family have my most sincere sympathy."

The candidacy of Kenny for Mayor today received the indorsement of the Republican City Committee.

Mayor Must Rest, Doctor Declares

The following bulletin was issued from Mayor Fitzgerald's home on Welles avenue at 11 o'clock this forenoon by Dr. William Whitworth Gannett:

"The Mayor has been under my observation half-yearly for the past several years. He has been warned that the strain of the extensive work to which he has subjected himself would in the end result in a breakdown. The examination today shows him to be in an exhausted condition, and an immediate rest has been enjoined awaiting further developments.

WILLIAM WHITWORTH GANNETT."

President Wilson Has Touch of Grip

Mrs. Pankhurst Collapses in Jail

EXETER, England, Dec. 5.—Mrs. Pankhurst collapsed late this afternoon and physicians were called in to attend her. With her constitution undermined by the illness she suffered before she went to America, the militant leader could not endure even a 24-hour strike against food and water.

"Father John's Med. Cured my cough," says Mrs. O. Madsen, Montvale St., Woburn, Mass.

Would Force Cities to Have Hospitals

The State Board of Health today asked Attorney-General Swift to take steps to force the cities of Gloucester and Lowell to establish hospitals for persons suffering from diseases dangerous to the public health, as required by law. These cities have been requested several times by the State Health Board to comply with the law and have failed to do so.

BARNES FLAYS PROGRESSIVES AND ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Sharp attacks on the Progressive party and on Theodore Roosevelt punctuated the speech made here today by State Chairman William Barnes at the conference called by Republican leaders to map out the future of the party in this State and in national affairs. In his prepared address Mr. Barnes completely ignored the attacks that have been made upon his personality, but repping no charges that the party has outlived its usefulness he said:

"The Republican party in 1912 determined not to join the procession of unreason, opportunism and cowardice.

"Not a day passes but that some event demonstrates the necessity for the existence of a political party which must have for its first principle 'order.' There is room in America for a party which thinks with its brain and not with its appetite. I do not believe that the policy of the Republican party will be reversed."

The speech was made before a gathering of several hundred Republicans from all parts of the State at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. This gathering convened after a meeting of the Republican State Committee. Among those present at the conference were Senator Root.

John D. in News of the Day From New York to Alaska

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Because of the good work firemen did at a blaze several weeks ago in a barn on his estate at Pocantico Hills, John D. Rockefeller sent the Liberty Hook and Ladder Company of Pocantico a check for $100 and an additional $85 for money sent to an Ossining company for damage to its engine.

SEATTLE, Dec. 5.—The late H. H. Rogers, John D. Rockefeller and others were caught in the sale of stock of the Cook Inlet Coal Fields.

The company, the government charges, built the uninhabited town of Homer, in Alaska, with saloons, dance halls, hotels and stores and street cars that pictures might be taken for the prospectus upon which stock was sold. Then the town was dismantled. Twenty-one coal claims have been cancelled because of fraud.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5.—John D. Rockefeller will spend Christmas here. He has completed his shopping.

Mr. Rockefeller is now hunting for second-hand brick with which to repair his estate.

NEEDLE FIEND DRUGS BRIDE IN THEATRE BOX

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Mrs. Marjorie Graff, twenty-two, a bride of two weeks, while in a box at the matinee in the Lyric Theatre, Newark, yesterday, was stuck in the back of the hand with a hypodermic needle, and collapsed into unconsciousness.

Armand Megaro, twenty-four, a South American born of Spanish parents, is under arrest charged with the attack.

Young girls in theatres, moving picture shows, and even in department stores, have been stabbed with these needles recently. White slavers are said to be using them in their hunt for victims.

At first Mrs. Graff was alone in the box. Megaro, fashionably dressed, walked coolly into her box from the adjoining one. While he could not attract her attention on the right, he went around and took a seat on the left. Then Mrs. Graff looked to the right. Her coat fell off the chair, and the woman reached for it.

Mrs. Graff felt a stinging sensation in the back of her hand. She made no outcry. A numbness and tingling spread up her arm. She felt faint and hurried to the ladies' room of the theatre. At the door she fell in a swoon. Coming to her senses she told the matron, and the theatre manager notified the police.

Lieutenant Farrell, responding to this call, after Mrs. Graff had sufficiently recovered, took her with him to the box where she had been sitting.

"That's the man; he is there yet," said Mrs. Graff, as she pointed out Megaro.

When the young man was taken into custody he protested his innocence so vigorously the police and detectives were puzzled. But one of the policemen called in recognized him as a former student at the New Jersey College of Pharmacy, where the use of drugs is taught as one of the courses. Since he left that school Megaro has been working as a clerk in Newark, and has had no bad associates as far as known.

Police Surgeon Clarke examined the puncture made by the needle on the woman's hand and said it was certainly a hypodermic of chloral that had been used.

Women Face Danger of Moro Tribesmen

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Mrs. Lorillard Spencer and Miss Virginia Young, head deaconess of St. George's Protestant Episcopal Church of this city, left today for the Philippines to conduct mission work in the island of Jolo, a hazardous venture because of the recent trouble among the Moro tribesmen of Jolo, who are revolting against the advance of civilization.

FOR FIFTEEN CENTS!

By FRANK H. MELOON

Around them Hell's inferno raged.
What Fiend this Devil's drama staged?
Who chose the Actors, live and dead?
Who ratified the Curtain that's so red?
Life's sweet, that Fiend knew, past a doubt—
Sweet even to the "Down and Out"!

"Step this way to register, gents.
"Whadda you want for fifteen cents?
"Both and a towel, maybe, you?
"Out of the way, and lively, too!
"We're taking 'em in, the stouts and the leans,
"Stacking 'em, packing 'em, like sardines.
"Safety? Precautions? Whadda you think?
"Pretty soon you'll want victuals and drink
"To be included for fifteen cents—
"Right this way to register, gents.

"Step this way to register, gents.
"Considering price, your bed's immense:
"We've nearly all that the law requires—
"Ain't no danger of any fires.
"House is a century old, I'll bet.
"And never has had no fire yet.
"Well, if there is, you hard luck crew,
"Who'll be missing the likes of you?
"Right this way and register, gents,
"Providing you've got your fifteen cents!"

Around them Hell's inferno raged.
They fought, like wild beasts trapped and caged,
Their way to win through smoke and flame,
To live—TO LIVE—their frenzied aim.
Ah, life is sweet beyond a doubt—
Sweet even to the "Down and Out"!

Mayor Is Legally Now a Candidate

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald is legally a candidate for Mayor since the Election Commissioners finished certifying the names on the first 100 of the 600 nomination papers filed by the Mayor last Saturday. On these papers the election department certified 5,500 names. If the Mayor's papers continue to show as many good names he will have nearly 30,000.

There are now three men legal candidates for Mayor, John R. Murphy of Charlestown, Congressman James M. Curley of Roxbury and the Mayor. Ex-Congressman John A. Kelliher has 3,700 signatures certified. Councilman Thomas J. Kenny has about 2,500, and Earnest Smith about 1,500 names.

United Refused to Take Over 80 Firms

Counsel Charles P. Choate, who is conducting the defendants case in the government suit against the United Shoe Machinery Company, today stated that the trial would probably last a month. President Winslow, again on the witness stand, stated that prior to the formation of the United Company the businesses of between 75 and 80 shoe machinery manufacturers were offered to the United Company, but declined.

Sentenced to Work in the Maine Woods

Picard was arrested for the second time within a month while absorbing the free heat.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Mrs Abigail Hancock Bishop, who several months ago got an interlocutory decree of divorce from James Cunningham Bishop, a New York banker, has applied in the Supreme Court for an order making the decree absolute.

ANOTHER 'DOC COOK' BUSY IN MAINE WOODS

Knowles is apparently not the only "Dr. Cook in the Maine woods."

Another "primitive man" has evidently been operating in the Maine woods, judging by the trophies on exhibition in a Washington-street window.

Traffic was blocked yesterday by a multitude which was inspecting the display, and everybody seemed greatly amused.

Holding the position of honor in the exhibit was the skin of what is termed an Aroostook wild cat, whose head was bitten off in a desperate struggle by the "primitive man." The AMERICAN has reliable information that, far from being that of a wildcat, the skin came from a poor old tabby which crawled into an ash barrel to die, at the corner of Dudley street and Blue Hill avenue. A small boy from that neighborhood is suspected, so is his sling shot.

In a corner of the window was what purported to be a deadfall and pit containing a bear. To a blind man in the crowd it would have been obvious that the deadfall was nothing but an ordinary pantry mouse trap, baited with a piece of cheese, and the bear inside was only a two-inch rodent. However, affidavits are in hand from the man who stoked the trap, from the grocer who sold the cheese and the relatives of the mouse. It is evident that a gross deception is being practiced somewhere.

Still more felonious is an alleged affidavit, written upon a piece of birchbark by a person called Snowshoe Ike, affirming the authenticity of the mouse trap. The birchbark has been traced, and may have been removed with a sharp knife from a tree on Boston Common, near Beacon street. The name of the tree cutter is known, and will be supplied to the authorities. It is a misdemeanor to deface trees upon the Commons.

An antidote for snake bite in the form of a whiskey bottle is the only bit of evidence which bears the slightest trace of accuracy or truthfulness. Several authorities state that whiskey is good for snake bites, and the fact that the bottle is empty would indicate the somebody at some time had been bitten by a snake, but this has nothing whatever to do with the question of who killed the bear since.

In summing up the evidence, it appears that the so-called bearskin came from a Dudley street tomcat, that the bear pit is only a mouse trap, and the alleged bear nothing but an ordinary house mouse. The birchbark is real birchbark, but the signatures are forged and the bark came from the Common. The whiskey bottle should have been in the possession of a primitive man, anyhow

PASTOR AYERS TO MARRY FOR FOURTH TIME

The Rev. William B. Ayers, formerly pastor of the Park and Downs Congregational Church at Wollaston, has taken out a license in Newton to wed Miss Sarah Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Miller of No. 41 Norwood avenue, Newton Centre.

Miss Miller will be Ayers' fourth wife. The pastor's first wife was Miss Pauline Shepard of Wichita, Kan., whom he married when she was but sixteen years old. She died some time after their marriage.

Mr. Ayers' second wife he divorced, and his third wife died only a few months after he married her.

Mr. Ayers, who is known as one of the most powerful young preachers in the church, was one of the principals in the schism which broke the Park and Downs Congregational Church into two factions when he was sued by one of his parishioners, Chester A. Boynton, for the alleged alienation of the affections of Boynton's wife.

The suit created a sensation in the church, and following a trial before the executive committee of the church, Mr. Boynton was expelled for bringing the charge against the pastor. He then moved to Revere, and joined the Congregational church in that town.

The actual suit for alienation resulted in a long-drawn-out fight in the Superior Court, in which the pastor scored a victory. Testimony brought out in court showed that Mr. Ayers had lived with the Boyntons during his pastorate in Wollaston. Mr. Boynton tried to prove that Mr. Ayers had usurped all the power in the household, and that he held stronger sway over the feelings of Mrs. Boynton than did her own husband.

Miss Miller, Ayers' fiancee, is twenty-nine years old, and was born in Methuen. Neither of the principals will divulge when or where the ceremony will take place.

MELROSE FULL OF OLD HENS, SAYS FRESNO

er 18. The date was agreed upon today counsel for the Russell estate and for Dakota Dan." The estate has filed a petition for the confirmation of the report Master Gilbert A. A. Pevey. Attorney William R. Scharton, counsel for "Dakota Dan," will fight the confirmation on the ground that the master assumed the prerogatives of a court and he moves for a reopening of the case.

Higgins Sends Refusal.

It was in a letter to Attorney Scharton that District-Attorney Higgins denied "Dakota Dan" the right to have the brain and other organs of William C. Russell examined by "Dakota Dan's" medical experts. District-Attorney Higgins in his letter said:

"Inasmuch as poison was mentioned as a cause of death I have requested Dr. Whitney to preserve all organs, thus all evidence to be furnished by the body is now available for use as evidence in any trial.

"If such an examination is material in any pending action in which your client is a party or may become in any future action, you have your recourse to the courts."

Attorney Scharton has intimated that he will appeal to the courts to permit an examination.

Meanwhile, as the recognized master of the Russell estate and owner of the $40,000 house in Melrose, "Fresno Dan" declares that he is highly pleased with the terms of the will and that he has no fear of the other claimant.

Plans for Future.

Speaking of his plans for the future, Mr. Russell here said: "I have not decided yet what I will do. I don't want to sell the old homestead, which would probably bring about $40,000. I wish my mother Will could have lived a few years more, as he loved the estate here and took much pleasure in living here.

"He never traveled much, but I like to travel over the country and see life. Coming from Chicago to Melrose is like going from Heaven to Hell. I wish I was out of Chicago now.

"Our there I enjoyed myself during the four months I was in that section recently. It was great to be away where no one talked about the Russell case. I liked to go to the rich men's hotels, where you could get a roast beef sandwich in the room where a colored man was in brass buttons.

"They call this place 'The Spotless Town,' don't they? Well, I like the West and felt at home traveling."

Fresno Dan did not think he would marry and settle down in the Russell home. "I am not thinking of marrying," he said. "If I ever did I would not marry anyone in Melrose—there are too many old hens here.

FEAR MUTINY IN GARRISON OF MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 5.—Reports of a threatened mutiny among the federal garrison were freely circulated today. Officials of the Huerta government denied the rumors, but it was noted that during the last twenty-four hours many officers whose loyalty had hitherto been unquestioned had been relieved of active duty and placed on the reserve list.

Important cabinet changes will be announced on Sunday, according to information secured today from government attaches. Querido Moheno, Minister of Foreign Affairs, is stated to retire, and Luis Mendez, the republic's expert on international law, is to succeed him. Mendez has an unblemished reputation as a lawyer and though nearly eighty years old has never mixed in factional strifes.

A double defeat has been inflicted upon the Constitutionalists in the States of Hidalgo and Durango, according to dispatches made public today by General Blanquet, Minister of War.

Rebels under Vincente Segura, a bullfighter, ex-bullfighter, were repulsed at Zimapan, State of Hidalgo. The towns of Santiago, Temoaya and Papasquiaro, on the National Railways in Durango, were recaptured by the federals after 100 rebels were slain.

TERRIBLE SUFFERING BY REFUGEES FLEEING FROM CHIHUAHUA CITY

PRESIDIO, Tex., via Marfa, Dec. 5.—Couriers traveling in advance of the caravan of refugees from Chihuahua rode into Presidio today with tragic stories of hardships and distress. They said that the main body of the fugitives would reach the border late this afternoon.

The fleeing federal soldiers seized whole families along the way as hostages to prevent an attack by the constitutionalists.

Refugees, soldiers, civilians, women and children have plodded over the 180 miles of Mexican and mountain land lying between Chihuahua City and the border. Exhausted women and children were left by the wayside to die of thirst and hunger.

Some of the members of the fleeing army were compelled to kill their horses and mules for food.

The United States military and civil authorities are co-operating to relieve the hungry, footsore and penniless refugees. Shelter tents will be provided and food and medical attention given. An emergency camp has been established by Captain Going of Troop E, Fifteenth U. S. Cavalry.

Many Mexican residents of Ojinaga have crossed the border because of reports that constitutionalists were advancing upon the town.

REPORT MINISTERS ARE PREPARING FOR THE DICTATOR'S FLIGHT

VERA CRUZ, Dec. 5.—The arrival here today of Adolfo De La Lama, Minister of Finance, on his way to Europe, gave rise to numerous reports as to the nature of his mission. It was freely predicted that he would try to raise money from French banks, but there was another interesting rumor that he was being sent to use his influence with Porfirio Diaz to return.

Political enemies of Huerta are circulating reports that Aldape and De Le Lama are being used to pave the way for the departure of Huerta, whose abdication is regarded as inevitable. These persons say that the luggage of the two Mexican statesmen contains part of Huerta's wealth.

He has been organist of Washington Lodge for forty-five years. He has played at 500 meetings of Absecon Lodge and the installing officer wished him "seventy-five years more of faithful service."

Filipino Band at Sailors' Haven

Classical and ragtime music played by a Filipino band of the United States Navy was the principal entertainment at a concert in the Sailors' Haven, Charlestown. It is the band of the battleship Georgia. Vocal and instrumental music was also furnished by members of the St. George Society of Roslindale.

28 Fowl Killed by Arsenic on Grave

RIVERHEAD, N. Y., Dec. 5.—After putting arsenic in bread crumbs on his mother's grave to kill off chickens who were despoiling the grass, Walter King was held responsible for the death of twenty-eight fowl owned by a neighbor and was arrested.

Tap Old Horse and Draw Seven Cents

EPPING, N. H., Dec. 5.—An old horse owned by Charles Ordway secreted seven cents, nickel and two pennies, in his carcass for several years, but the protuberance was lanced and the "plant" revealed. Mr. Ordway says he is going to raise horses that will know enough to deposit their loose change in a bank and draw interest.

Australian Ministry Quits.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 5.—Premier W. A. Watt of Victoria and his Cabinet resigned today. Members of the labor party will dominate the next ministry.

THAYER SEES POLITICAL PLOT IN WIFE'S SUIT

Charging that the separate-support suit brought against him by his wife is part of a political plot, Walter B. Thayer, a well-known market man of Boston, a former selectman of Winthrop and prominent in Masonic and club circles in that town, promises a bitter contest. He said:

"I am a candidate for selectman in Winthrop at the coming election, and I believe this whole affair is nothing more than a plot of persons in Winthrop to embarrass me now. I have instructed my attorney, Alexander S. Neal of No. 6 Beacon street, to bring action against several persons in Winthrop in connection with the affair."

"As a matter of fact, my wife left me over three years ago, after I had turned over to her the absolute possession of our home.

"Since she left me (and I have always been willing and anxious that she come back) I have paid her regularly weekly sums of money, and my accounts will show that the total amounts will not be much under $2,000."

2,500 Passengers Due Here Sunday

Nearly 2,500 passengers will land in Boston Sunday. Among the arriving liners will be the steamship Alsatia, the new addition to the Cunard fleet, and which is in command on her maiden trip of Captain Rostron, hero of the Carpathia, which rescued the Titanic survivors; the Cretic of the White Star line, and the Kentuckian of the American-Hawaiian line.

KILL CATARRH GERM USE BOOTH'S HYOMEI

Try the sure and most effective way to reach the raw, tender, inflamed mucous membrane infected with catarrh germs—breathe Hyomei. All dr ists sell it.

You cannot reach the nooks and crevices of the breathing organs with liquid preparations; there is only one way—breathe a few times daily the germ-destroying air of Booth's Hyomei. It acts directly on the inflamed membranes and destroys the catarrhal germs.

Hyomei is not a cure-all; it has one purpose—quick and effective relief of catarrh and diseases of the breathing organs. When you are free of catarrhal ills the general health will improve.

If you suffer from offensive breath, raising of mucus, frequent sneezing, husky voice, discharge from the nose, droppings in the throat, spasmodic coughing, or any other symptoms of catarrh, use Hyomei at once. It will destroy the disease germs in the nose, throat and lungs, and give quick and permanent relief.

Hyomei does not contain cocaine or any habit-forming drug—no stomach dosing—you just breathe it. The complete outfit, including pocket inhaler and bottle of liquid, costs $1.00; extra bottles of liquid, if later needed, 50 cents.

MILLIONAIRE'S WIFE WILL AID MRS. WAKEFIELD

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 5.—Mrs. William J. Bickenderfer, wife of the millionaire Stamford typewriter manufacturer, is here to take charge of the State-wide campaign to save the wife of Mrs. Bessie Wakefield, who is condemned to be hanged March 4.

Mrs. Bickenderfer may make a political issue of it and said in discussing the case:

"We do not feel at all discouraged about the outcome of the case because of the report that powerful sentiment is in some cases against us. Many of those who opposed us at first now regret their rash remarks and sooner or later, will be ashamed to recall their words.

"When we first began to work for Mrs. Wakefield it was because we believed it an injustice to take the life of a helpless woman under any circumstances, our opinion being governed entirely by suffrage sentiment. But since investigating the case, together with new evidence which is coming to light, we feel that Bessie Wakefield was not given the right chance to prove her innocence, and it is to remove from her the stigma of murder, imposed unjustly, as we believe, that we wish to lessen her guilt through a new trial.

"The hanging of a woman would be unspeakable disgrace to the State, and an overwhelming blot on the Democratic Administration.

Shot Self, Accused of Watering Milk

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 5.—"I never adulterated my milk. I'll never go to court," were the last words of George T. Naylor, sixty, found dead early this morning, having shot himself in his barn. Mrs. L. S. Colwell, the nearest neighbor, said he had peddled milk for forty years, and the warrant of arrest preyed on his mind.

IT PAYS TO KEEP IN TOUCH WITH THE SIEGEL STORE

A Christmas Store That's Full of Interest

As you enter the door a wonderful scene awaits you. Hundreds of glowing lights on every side—great vines of laurel creeping up every post. A giant windmill, made entirely of handkerchiefs with its great wheel lazily turning. All these things on the main floor. On the second floor a big Christmas tree aglow with lights that will delight the little folks. Then up on the great third floor is a real live circus for the children, with its funny clowns and hosts of trained animals—and everywhere you look are toys—toys—toys—and the whole place alive and buzzing with childlife—a spot full of human interest.

Particular Attention is directed to the reproduction of a Canadian winter carnival in one of our Washington street show windows—here you'll find toboggans shooting swiftly down steep slides—a great pond with miniature skaters in Canadian costumes actually skating—then there are parties on snow shoes climbing snow covered hills and the great ice palace brightly illuminated and sparkling and glowing in the Canadian moonlight.

KNOWLES SAYS LITTLE ON "PRIMITIVE LIFE"

friends got hold of me and I thought they would pull my arms off.

They took me over to my room at the hotel and said: "Knowles, this is your room." I looked around and saw a bed and a little stand. I could not see what that stand was for. Everybody poured into that room. They all wanted to ask questions at once. Every time anybody moved they would knock that stand over. Then someone would pick it up, but it would soon be knocked over again. I could not imagine what it was there for.

Eager for Food.

The bed looked good to me. I looked at it several times. From half-past four till nine o'clock they had asked me everything, except this: No one had asked me if I wanted anything to eat. One fellow gave me a cigarette. Another fellow came along and asked me how it seemed. "How do you enjoy your first smoke?" It was the first time I had noticed that I was smoking.

About that time a fellow came along and said: "Mr. Knowles, don't you want something to eat?" I said, "Yes, I think I can eat something." He asked: "What will you have? You can have anything in the house." I was just thinking what I should say when two physicians walked up and said: "Look here, you don't want to let Knowles begin to eat anything now that he wants. He has been without much food some time and you are liable to kill him. Living in the woods so long, you should be very careful what you give him." I looked at those doctors. One fellow said: "You don't suppose two spoonfuls of milk would hurt him, do you?" Another suggested some beef tea. And there I was hungry enough to eat a bear. Another fellow said: "Gentlemen, listen." He had to talk loud to be heard. "Here is a man who has been in the woods two months, eating what the animals eat, namely, what he could find, doing without salt. Wouldn't it be interesting to know what he would order for his first meal. Listen, now, what do you want to eat?"

Pork and Potatoes.

I ordered as quickly as I could fried salt pork and potatoes and bread and butter and tea. The reason was that this was the first recollection of food as a boy, in addition to some corn bread. The fellow said I should have it. He came up with a big tray, and there was no place to put it but on the stand. I could see what the stand might be for, but I thought if he put much of anything on the tray it would be all day with it, the stand would not hold it up. They said: "Sit down now and eat." They all watched me. One fellow said: "Mr. Knowles, I would like to know how you feel after your first meal."

Well, I told him I felt hungrier than when I sat down. They had not given me enough. But they said: "You have been in the woods. We do not dare to give you all you will eat. We do not mean to starve you, but we do not want to give you too much the first meal." And they didn't.

Finally I said, "Is this my room?" They said it was. I said: "Will you be kind enough to go out? Can I go to bed?" But they said: "We want to talk with you." I said: "Now, men, I was on the way two days and nights, and I want to sleep. Tomorrow I will talk to you all you want. This is my room. Get out and leave me alone. You can't stay any longer."

A Chance to Sleep.

But they said there ought to be one or two men with me. I finally got them all out and fastened the door and put the stand and all the furniture I could find against the door, and slept until they called me the next day. But that was before daylight. When we started away everybody all along the line came out to see me. When we got to a town the boys pulled me down to the platform, and one time the train went off before I could get back on, but it came back and got me.

One of the boys told me to get in the baggage car and keep the doors open so they could see me. When we came through the woods one of the fellows said: "You had better put chain and balls on Knowles or he will be running into the woods again."

When we got to Portland they had a banquet for me. They asked me to say a few words. I didn't know what to do. I had never made a speech to people. They said: "Don't worry. Just tell them what you did in the woods." I got up. I started in and made my speech. After I got through talking a man stood up and said: "I want to shake hands with you. I have watched you here tonight. I believe everything you have said. I believe you have lived just as you say you have lived. I believe every man could live as you say they could if they would do it. There are men who don't believe it. Every man has the privilege of believing as he will."

This spirit of doubt must be the reason why everybody comes to the stations to see me. This must be the reason for the interest in what I have done.

Stands by Reports.

This much I wish to say. All the reports that I have written and signed my name to, that have been printed in the papers, I will stand by. I will bet $20,000 that I can take from three to six of those men who do not believe what I have said, and I will live two months exactly as I have lived during the past two months, under the closest inspection. For my own satisfaction it is not necessary, but if they care to take this up I will go out with them.

This bet has stood from then until now. I do not think it is up to me to go back into the woods just to satisfy the curiosity of doubters who won't believe. If a man wants to know for himself he shouldn't be afraid to put up money.

If any man here wants to come up here and ask me any questions I will ask him one question. He can ask me any question he wants to ask me. I would like to ask him a few, and if he will answer me truly, I will guarantee his answer will be "Yes." I will guarantee that a man can live in the woods if he has knowledge and experience enough. His answer will be "Yes." Or if any man wants to ask me any questions he can come to the hotel, and I will give him a courteous reply to any question he wishes to ask.

Don't forget! Another instalment of the biggest story ever printed in any newspaper—The TRUTH ABOUT KNOWLES, OR THE REAL ADVENTURES OF THE DOCTOR COOK OF THE MAINE WOODS— WILL BE PRINTED IN NEXT SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

MRS. CATT IS CRITICIZED BY 'ANTI' LEADER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—Attacking Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, whom she declared had said that the Constitution should be torn up, as it does not fit the necessities of the day, Mrs. William Scott of New York today appeared before the House rules committee to protest on behalf of the antisuffragists against the proposal to create a special committee on woman suffrage. Mrs. Scott declared that this showed to what extremes the suffragists would go.

"We are quite clear," she said, "that there is no need of a committee on woman suffrage unless Congress can exercise the power to determine the qualifications of State electors. The question for determination is really the right of non-combatants to assume control of government."

GUILD URGES FEDERAL CHILD LABOR LAW

Pleading for a national child labor law, ex-Governor Curtis Guild, at the Twentieth Century Club, said that the present laws were inadequate, and that if the consensus of legal opinion was such a national law would be unconstitutional we should not hesitate to amend the Constitution.

"We decided the Constitution to free the colored slave in the South," he said. "So why should we not amend it to free the white child in the mines and mills and factories?"

POLICE STATION FIRE IMPERILS LIVES OF TEN

Lieutenant William Hyland and nine other policemen, asleep on their cots on the two upper floors, were threatened with the fate that befell the twenty-eight victims of the Arcadia lodging house disaster, during a fire early today in the City Hall avenue police station.

Only the timely discovery of the blaze by Sergeant John Clifford prevented a serious fire, as the flames were discovered six feet away from a wooden staircase offering the only means of escape to the men asleep above.

Like many other police stations in Boston, the building is a firetrap. There are no fire escapes and the wooden staircase leading from the guard room is narrow and perilous. The stairs are enclosed in a wooden partition at the bottom of which is a wooden door.

Lieutenant Mulligan, at the desk, and Sergeant Clifford, at the table, were the only ones awake in the station.

MRS. MEDILL McCORMICK, who will present suffragists' petition to President Wilson today.

SUFFRAGISTS LIE IN WAIT FOR WILSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—"We are sorry President Wilson is ill, but it cannot see us he may hear from us without granting a reception at the White House."

This was the veiled threat made by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National Woman's Suffrage Association, when she learned that the White House physician had ordered the President to stay in bed.

The announcement came as a blow to the votes-for-women leaders, for they had confidently expected an opportunity of presenting their case to the nation's chief executive, but they did not allow it to delay their work. They speedily cleared up routine business in order that their delegates might go before the House Rules Committee as soon as the anti-suffrage leaders had concluded their arguments.

It was unanimously voted to appoint a committee of fifty-five women to remain in Washington to await the recovery of President Wilson and such time as he will receive them to hear their arguments for the "Cause."

Mrs. Medill McCormick, in proposing the appointment of the committee, said: "I have just learned at the White House that the President is ill; not able to leave his room, and probably will not see anyone until Monday. I, therefore, propose the following resolution:

Since President Wilson's illness makes it impossible for him to leave his room or to see us, be it

Resolved by this convention that a committee of fifty-five women be appointed to await the pleasure of the President and his recovery from illness and then to call upon him and impress upon him the importance of woman's suffrage and urge him to make woman suffrage an administration policy.

The resolution went through amid the cheers of the delegates.

STEAD'S SPIRIT TALKED TO HER, SAYS DAUGHTER

Describing how she saw and conversed with the spirit of her father three weeks after his drowning on the Titanic, Miss Estelle Wilson Stead, daughter of William T. Stead, the noted peace advocate and Spiritualist of England, told the story of her father's life in Blackwell Hall on Huntington avenue to about 300 persons.

Miss Stead described the reappearance of her father as follows: "It was three weeks after the tragedy that took my father from me. Several of his closest friends were with me in the quiet room where so many times he had presided over our talks with those across the border. There was a long silence.

"Then, as plainly as I see any face before me here, I saw the countenance of my father directly beside me. It grew more and more distinct till not the shadow of a doubt remained that it was he. He stayed with us for a brief time and then as slowly faded away. All was silence.

"It was not till he had finally gone from our sight that I heard a message from his lips. The words were clear, and words I can never, never forget. All I told you is true. Just six words, but the most precious words I have ever heard."

INDOOR WORK REDUCES STRENGTH

because confining duties, lack of fresh air and sunshine gradually weaken even a strong constitution, and the enfeebled system readily accepts sickness and disease.

Scott's Emulsion checks such decline. Its pure cod liver oil is nature's grandest medicinal food while its hypophosphites act as a building tonic. It refreshes the body, puts vigor in the blood, strengthens the lungs, upbuilds the nerves and invigorates the whole system.

If you work indoors, Scott's Emulsion after meals will prevent much sickness and loss of time, and often thwarts tuberculosis—it builds up and holds up your strength.

Receipts were shown to the court by Mrs. Ray which she said represented $900 that her husband had spent riding in taxicabs.

"He often came home in taxis while under the influence of liquor," said she.

The cook of the Volturno said a number of persons were on the boat deck, which was without rails and thus were unprotected after the boats were launched. When the vessel rolled, several fell overboard, clutching others, whom they dragged down with them.

COURT DENIES THE PETITION OF MRS. WALKER

NEWPORT, R. I., Dec. 5.—The petition of Mrs. Nina Walker for separate maintenance from Lieutenant James W. G. Walker, U. S. N., was denied today in a decision handed down by Judge Stearns of the Superior Court of Rhode Island, sitting at Newport.

In his receipt, Judge Stearns, in paying special attention to the part Miss Mabel Cochrane played in the case—she having been accused by his wife—completely exonerates Miss Cochrane, and says:

"All of the testimony is of a circumstantial nature."

As to Charley Slappey, who testified that he saw Lieutenant Walker kissing Mabel Cochrane at Charleston, South Carolina, the court feels that it should be considered with caution in view of the fact that Slappey is a discharged servant. The court says:

"Circumstances merely suspicious are inadequate. The burden of proof is on the accuser. I am clearly of the opinion that the petitioner has failed to establish her case."

"I find that the petitioner has failed to [illegible] cruelty."

Attorneys for Mrs. Walker declared after the reading of the receipt the case would be appealed to the Supreme Court.

The first Walker trial took place in Rhode Island in 1911. Mrs. Walker won a divorce.

Then early the next year Walker asked the Rhode Island Supreme Court for a rehearing of the case, claiming that he had new evidence to present.

The case was subsequently brought up for trial again and much sensational testimony developed. Today came the decision. The Walkers lived in Brookline, Mass., several years ago, when Walker was an officer at the Charlestown, Mass., navy yard.

COURT REFUSES DAMAGE CLAIM FOR 'BLACKLIST'

Judge Loring of the Supreme Court today overruled the master's finding in the Haverhill shoe strike case, by which an award for damages had been made to a shoe worker who charged the Haverhill Shoe Manufacturers' Association with preventing him from getting employment through a "blacklist."

The court finds as a matter of law that employers have a right to band together for the purpose of resisting a strike and if then the employers issue a "blacklist," it is not to be considered a boycott on strikers.

Judge Loring also ruled that striking employes had a right to send a delegation from their union to employers for the purpose of negotiation, and that a refusal on the part of employers to meet with the delegation was sufficient ground for the calling of a strike.

Salem Candidate Sued for Slander

SALEM, Dec. 5.—Two suits of $10,000 each, charging libel and slander, have been brought against Thomas J. Lally, candidate for director of public health of this city. William J. Lally is a retail shoe dealer, and is alleged to have made Colbert and Gifford the subjects of vicious attacks during his campaign for office.

Harvard Cheer an Ancient Roman Echo

Professor von Bolsshuts, German exchange professor at Harvard, compares the Harvard cheer with the shouts of encouragement in Rome in the olden days. He compares it with analogous customs recorded of the synod held in Rome in 499 A. D. and with the organized cheers with which the people greeted the emperors in mediaeval Byzantium. He finds the Harvard cheer very inspiring.

FAVOR CABINET PORTFOLIO OF PUBLIC WORKS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The creation of a department of public works with a Cabinet officer at its head as the best means to obtain a comprehensive and systematic plan of waterway transportation and approval of congressional legislation exempting from Panama Canal tolls vessels of the United States engaged in coastwise trade were among the leading recommendations today of the resolutions' committee of the tenth annual rivers and harbors congress. The report was scheduled for adoption by a large majority.

This proposed department of the federal government represents the indorsement of the idea of a comprehensive scientific plan of river improvement and flood prevention as embodied in the New Inland bill. It marks the turning point in the policy of the organization.

While the resolutions call for an annual appropriation by the government of at least $50,000,000 for rivers and harbors the emphasis in the report is placed upon the national idea.

On the question of water power, over which a sharp fight was waged in the committee room, the report is non-committal. It says:

"While some of our waterways may be put to beneficial use in addition to the paramount claims of navigation and while it would be wise in such cases that the full benefits of such waterways should be attained, having constantly in view their subordination to navigation, the advocacy of measures looking to the use of our waterways for purposes other than those of navigation is beyond the scope of the purpose and policies of this Congress."

WOMAN CLAIMS LAND BENEATH COURT HOUSE

Alleging that the land on which the Suffolk County Courthouse in Pemberton square is located is part of the estate of Isaac Russell, Mrs. Katherine Russell Champney, a daughter, residing in Bellair, O., may file a bill in equity to prove the ownership of the site.

Attorney Victor Scharton has received a letter from Mrs. Champney stating her claim. In searching the records, Attorney Scharton says he finds Jeremiah Russell, her grandfather, was seized of a farm in 1787, the exact limits of which he has not yet been able to determine.

According to Mrs. Champney's letter, Jeremiah Russell was the father of Isaac Russell, and left Boston some time in 1806, afterwards serving in the War of 1812, receiving wounds from which he died. Isaac Russell left Boston for the West when a young man, and died twenty-three years ago at the age of eighty-seven in Ohio.

Attorney Scharton also finds in the records with n the courthouse that one of the boundaries of the old Russell farm in Boston was Milk street and the lines stretched north and west to an extent which he believes will include the site of the present courthouse as well as the old one, where the new City Hall Annex now stands.

SAYS NEW DRUG HAS HUNDREDS OF HUB VICTIMS

That a new drug, a product of opium is making its ravages felt in Boston, and that a certain square where it is sold is known to the initiated as "heroin square," was the statement of Dr. C. J. Douglas of this city, at the annual meeting of the Society for the Study of Alcohol and other Narcotics, in Philadelphia.

The new drug, according to Dr. Douglas, is making victims by the hundred in Boston, and the discovery of the drug is of such a recent date that no effective State law may be made to apply against it.

The effects of the drug are similar to those of morphine, he declared, and the ease with which it may be procured is startling.

Dr. Douglas described what he termed "sniffing parties," at which the drug is occasionally passed around and used as the chief means of entertainment.

The society learned that the United States is now second only to China in the use of opium and the narcotics derived from it. One speaker declared that the menace is so great that there is danger of our "degenerating to something worse than monkeydom."

The figures show that imports of opium into this country now average over 400,000 pounds yearly, only 20 per cent. of which is used legitimately.

SHAW A DRUG USER, HIS BRIDE DECLARES

Mrs. Arthur Hunnewell Shaw. (Photograph by Aime Dupont)

The court has under advisement today the suit for divorce of Mrs. Acrata von Shrader Shaw, daughter of the wealthy Otto U. von Shrader of St. Louis, against Arthur Hunnewell Shaw, the millionaire son of Robert Gould Shaw of Commonwealth avenue, Back Bay, and Wellesley, on the ground of confirmed habits of intoxication, caused by opium and other drugs, heard at Dedham.

The testimony of Mrs. Shaw and of her father, Otto U. von Shrader, was of a startling nature. Mrs. Shaw said: "The night before we were married my husband informed me he used drugs in a mild form, but I did not know what he meant. While we were on our honeymoon in New York, I saw him use drugs at the hotel. When we sailed for Europe on December 21, three days after we were at sea I discovered drugs and morphine. I asked him what he was doing and he told me he was being cured and would be all well when we reached Europe.

"While in Paris I found him using drugs again, and requesting him to give them up, he promised to do so. While we were in Vienna he took an overdose of morphine and I was up all night giving him cold baths. He remembered nothing on that night from the overdose of morphine, which he claimed afterward he took by mistake. I went with him to a physician and he ordered him to a sanitarium, where I remained with him three or four days. The doctor said he was cured after the treatment."

Fake Police Arrest Women at Wedding

Disguised Society Men Drag Guests to Patrol Wagon.

Guests at the wedding of A. Ware Merriam of Milton and Miss Gertrude M. Wetmore, daughter of Charles E. Wetmore, treasurer of the American Hardware company, were dumfounded when their dancing was interrupted by two policemen, who announced that the bogus police and other mad revelers were under arrest. The wedding was in New Britain, Ct.

Following their arrest the "officers" seized two fashionably gowned women and insisted them to the patrol wagon standing at the curb. It was not until the prisoners burst into tears and began to tell the horrid cops what they thought of them that the police made for the door, out of the way.

SEE NATURE'S REAL BEAUTY; GET COLOR SET

Did you ever hand color a picture?

If not, you don't know the satisfaction of making a dull dead black and white picture change to a natural, almost life like image.

It is simply astonishing what a touch of rose here and there will do.

What could be more exquisite for a Christmas gift to a dear friend than a real home Water Color picture done yourself?

You say you can't do it? Nonsense! any child can do it and in fact, they are doing it every day in the year. They are now being taught this work in the public schools throughout New England.

The AMERICAN is making a wide spread distribution of Water Color Painting Sets each week with the Sunday AMERICAN.

The object of this plan is to stimulate interest in Nature, not only among boys and girls but also among their elders.

There are wonderful masterpieces in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts but the one great masterpiece of all the ages is Nature.

Artists of world-renown can and do copy Nature's works but they never equal it.

The AMERICAN'S Water Color Painting Set distribution will cause greater interest in Nature and every appreciation of her works which constantly surround us.

Fathers, your boy and your girl should be furnished with one of these handsome sets without further delay. And while you are about it get one for yourself. It will do you as much good as the younger folks and after you have hand colors I one picture you will not be satisfied until you have made yourself proficient in the work and the final result will be that you will have an entirely different appreciation of the wonderful works of nature.

Read the full details of this offer in today's AMERICAN and act quickly as it is probable that the supply of sets will be insufficient to meet the great demand.

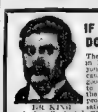
WHAT IS GOOD TO EAT TODAY IN THE MARKET

The Boston fruit market is still feeling the effects of the heavy frosts in the California orange groves last year. Only 4,931 boxes of California oranges arrived in Boston during the month of November as against 50,114 in the same month last year. The receipts of Florida, Jamaica and Porto Rico oranges are very heavy but the price is excessive owing to the absence of California competition.

The increasing popularity of brussels sprouts in the Boston market is shown by the increasing price, notwithstanding the fact that the gardeners are producing more of them every year. At present they sell for eighteen cents a quart.

Venison is more plentiful at present than it has been for many years, and hundreds of deer and moose have been stored in refrigerator warehouses during the open season. Good venison steaks are selling for fifty cents a pound.

A new variety of rasalin melon is being shipped from southern California, different in shape and color from the usual variety. They sell for fifty to seventy-five cents each.



IF I HURT YOU DON'T PAY ME

Friends, it's the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, by the Dr. King system. Painless dentistry. I perform all dental operations absolutely without pain, and I guarantee it.

FACE WAS FULL OF PIMPLES

Hurt Awfully, Face Disfigured, Itched So Scratching Made Sores, Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In Few Weeks Free From Pimples.

Westfield, Va.—"My face was full of pimples which grew like blackheads and little dots of white on top. They looked like little bumps, and they hurt me awfully. My face was disfigured for a long time and I was ashamed of myself. They itched so that I'd scratch at them and make sores. There was a time I could not rest easy at night.

"I tried all kinds of salves for about three months but without success until a friend told me of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I would apply the Cuticura Ointment to the affected part and wash off the Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water and continued bathing for some minutes. To my relief in a few weeks I was free from pimples." (Signed) Miss Yvonne Bendt, Apr. 12, 1913.

FOR RED, ROUGH HANDS

Chapped and bleeding hands, with itching burning palms, shapeless nails and painful finger-ends, a one-night Cuticura treatment works wonders. Soak hands on retiring, in hot water and Cuticura Soap. Dry, anoint with Cuticura Ointment and wear old, loose gloves during the night. They are also most effective for the treatment of pimples, blackheads, dandruff and falling hair.

Beginning on December 19 a two weeks test of the Marion-Knight motor will be made by the Automobile Club of America's engineering laboratory.

On December 17 the motor will be put on the block in the A. C. A.'s laboratory for a two days' preliminary run, and at noon on December 19 it will be started on its 336-hour run at 1,200 revolutions without stop during the two weeks. Every fifteen minutes officials of the Automobile Club of America will make records of the performance, which will be made public after the test.

The test is being conducted for the purpose of proving that the power of the Marion-Knight will not decrease with use and that it will develop more power at the finish than when first put on test.

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber company yesterday took possession of the four-story building recently erected for its use on Brookline avenue, Boston, by the Boylston street establishment. The work of removal has been going on in a quiet manner for the past three or four weeks, but yesterday Managers W. F. Hagan and W. R. Ross decided that the time had come for total removal and so at one sweep the factory's office force and the entire outfit was transferred to Brookline avenue. The building is one of the latest and best equipped structures to be found in the city and marks a distinct advance on the part of the local branch of the Goodyear company.

SLEEP-DISTURBING BLADDER WEAKNESS, BACKACHE AND RHEUMATISM VANISH

Even Most Chronic Sufferers Find Quick Relief.

A few doses of Croz on paper fail to relieve such troubles because it roams out the clogged up inactive organs and leaves them work properly. It soaks right into the kidneys, cleans out the little filtering cells and glands and renews the active power. It no longer irritates the tender membranes of the bladder, dissolves the poisonous uric acid substances that collect in the joints and muscles, and stops and irritates and causes rheumatism, and cleans out and strengthens the lifeless kidneys, so they can filter and sift the poison from the blood and drive it out of the system.

No sure—no positive—so quick and lasting are the results obtained from Croxone that three doses a day for a few days are often all that is required to end the worst bladder, kidney, rheumatism, backache and bladder disorders and put the kidneys in healthy, active condition.

It is practically impossible to take this quick acting, effective preparation without results.

An original package costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone fails to promptly give desired results, regardless of how old you are or how long you have suffered.

THE LOVE STORY OF EVELYN THAW

Dramatic Incidents of Tragic Career Are Recited of Fugitive's Wife.

CHAPTER LXXXVIII.

"Doth work like madness in the brain."
—Coleridge.

When John B. Gleason of the Thaw lawyers rose to address the jury the general question was, "Will the defence be 'unwritten law' or insanity, emotional or otherwise, or what?"

Gleason said:

"You must discard all idea that we are to import into the case any so-called higher or unwritten law."

That settled the "unwritten law" idea Gleason went on.

"We will rely upon all the defenses the law allows. One of the laws on trial here is the law as to insanity."

There it was. The lawyers were to show that Harry was insane, no matter how fiercely he had resisted that line of defence from the start. Gleason continued:

Believed White Wronged Him.

Thaw believed Stanford White had wronged him.

The defendant was suffering from an illusion, namely, which we shall exhibit to his friends. When we show you this insanity in the family and then show you that a man's act, you will say it was the act of an insane man.

You will understand the stress The hereditary will be proved. Heredity and stress are the two great causes of insanity.

Gleason undertook to mention Harriet K. Thaw, inmate of an asylum, but Jerome objected. Gleason had said enough, however to show that this bone in the Thaw family exercise was to be ratified as much as possible.

Then Gleason dwelt upon the part Evelyn would play in the defence, saying:

"Fell Honorably in Love."

Harry Thaw met Evelyn Nesbit in 1901 and fell honorably in love with her. He went to her mother in March 1902, and told her he wanted to marry her daughter. The girl soon thereafter, it so happened, was in a hospital to undergo a serious operation. It was arranged between Thaw and her mother that when she had sufficiently recovered Miss Nesbit should be taken to Europe to recuperate.

We will show you that, in 1903, Thaw asked this young woman to marry him. She refused. WHY SHE REFUSED YOU WILL HEAR FROM HER OWN LIPS. SHE WILL TELL YOU THE STORY SUFFICIENT TO SAY THAT THE REASON WAS ONE CONNECTED WITH AN EXPERIENCE IN THE LIFE OF THAT GIRL WITH REFERENCE TO STANFORD WHITE.

There it was in plain English. The defence was going to put Evelyn on the stand to tell in her own words the story of some experience she had with White which was pertinent to this murder trial.

Meant Sacrifice of Wife.

It was evident that Evelyn was not to be spared in the desperate effort to save Harry from the chair. The defence of the husband meant the sacrifice of the wife.

But Gleason was to humiliate Harry even more, as part of the defence. He said:

That Thaw suffered from a diseased mind we will show you by the testimony of his mother, his wife, his relatives, his doctors and by letters he wrote to the Society for the Prevention of Vice.

When you have heard all this testimony it will be impossible for you to say that the act of this man, for which he is now undergoing trial, was that of a sane person. Working in his diseased brain, we will show you, were many things connected with his past life and that of his wife.

They culminated in the explosion which caused the defendant to kill Stanford White.

This was a hint at the story that Harry's mother must have to tell on the stand to save her son. She would be asked to tell anything about his childhood and beyond which would show that he was queer, abnormal, not like the average boy.

Called Mind Disease.

"Diseased mind," and "Diseased brain" were phrases Gleason used, no matter how unsavory those expressions were to the defendant.

To counteract Garvan's accusation of malice aforethought and also to bolster up Harry's act by a self-protection plea, Gleason then said:

"Thaw had long labored under the delusion that his life was in danger wherever he was in New York city, and consequently he had always, after January, 1904, carried a revolver when visiting here. The pistol was in his overcoat pocket with other belongings when Thaw went to the Madison Square Roof Garden the night of June 25.

Still pursuing the line of an uncontrollable delusion, Gleason concluded:

His unsound mind still gubbing him, he saw what was a demon glowering at him. Acting on the impulse of the delusion that he not would be an act of Providence he walked coolly and deliberately, using or I would walk down the street, to where Stanford White sat and still believing it was an act of Providence pulling him, he shot and killed him. He thought the act was right, not wrong.

"Believed Act to Be Right."

Believing his act to be right, he had no idea of evading any of the consequences. Still regarding himself as the agent of Providence, he stood there, holding his pistol aloft, as if saying to say: "It is done! It is right! It is not wrong!"

Gleason's opening must have been more powerful and convincing, according to comments made by many of the correspondents. It happened that Former Assistant District Attorney "Joe" Dennison of Boston was at the trial. Asked what he thought of the Thaw opening he said:

Insanity is a delicate defence at the best to handle and it requires presenting in its most impressive form. To carry conviction. This afternoon's opening Mr. Gleason was promising those sensational disclosures which would show so much reason for Thaw's narration he refused so little short that I doubt if the jury appreciated just how important a statement the young man was making.

Would Not "Tip" Jerome.

Court adjourned after Gleason's address until the next morning. Jerome wished to know who was to be the first Thaw witness also. Delmas said he was not prepared to say. Delmas knew that Jerome wished to know merely to be more prepared.

Judge Fitzgerald said he hoped counsel would exchange such courtesies as would expedite the case for the sake of the jurors and the defendant.

The opposing counsel were still feeling any too sugary toward one another at the best and the reporters looked for some sparkling encounters between the peppery Jerome and the smooth but sarcastic Delmas.

* * * *

At the close of the previous week Roger O'Mara came up from Pittsburgh with some exhibits who were to help show Thaw insane. One of these was Dr. C. C. White from the Dixmont (Pa.) Insane Asylum. He was the first witness for the defence on Tuesday, March 4. Then Jerome took him in hand for cross-examination and he because a very unhappy gentleman.

Here's a Cure For Sciatica

Painful Form of Rheumatism Quickly Overcome

Those sharp, darting pains that characterize sciatic rheumatism should be treated in the blood. And by using S. S. S. you not only get relief but a cure.

S. S. S. has the peculiar action of passing through the tissues directly into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every circulatory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys and bladder to do their work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain inflicting atom of poison. It dislodges by irritation all accumulations in the joints, causes and secretions to dissolve, renders them neutral and carries those peculiar formations in the nerve centres that cause such agonizing and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And, best of all, this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no reaction but gives a quick tonic. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure water is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

You can get S. S. S. at any drug store. S. S. S. is a standard remedy, recognized everywhere as the greatest blood antidote ever discovered. If yours is a peculiar case and you desire special information, write to The Swift Specific Co., 221 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

DON'T SCOLD AN IRRITABLE CHILD

If little tongue is coated, surely give "California Syrup of Figs."

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Counterfeits are being sold here. Don't be fooled!

Do You Suffer With Rheumatism? If so, try Elmer & Amend's 2831 and get relief. Thousands speak well of it. Reliable druggists carry it.

That in the whole city, this Live Store is the only retail establishment, dealing exclusively in high-grade merchandise, that is on a strictly cash basis.

Our notable success as Good Clothes sellers is principally due to our greater value-giving, which is, in turn, very largely due to our elimination of charge accounts.

For credit is a commodity which is bought and sold and has its market price. It must always be paid for, whether obtained from a bank, a loan broker or a retail store.

No high-salaried credit man, no small army of bookkeepers, no corps of collectors, no losses through bad accounts are paid for by customers of this Live Store.

We're among the pioneers in this respect, but the better values we're able to give because of our spot-cash policy have helped us to become the largest of our kind in the East.

If you want 100 cents' worth of Good Clothes for every clothing dollar you invest, here's where you'll find it. But if you want to buy a line of credit along with your suit or overcoat, at a figure representing the combined price of the garment and the credit, you'll have to look elsewhere. Read, on the left, what Roger W. Babson says about "charge accounts."

ONE cause of the increased cost of living is the extension of the credit system. Not only are all of us obliged indirectly to pay for the services of unnecessary bookkeepers and credit departments, but those of us who pay our bills are obliged also to make up the losses due to those who do not; in fact, the present system of encouraging the extension of credits is one of the greatest curses to business today.

One thing is certain—namely, that this can be carried only so far, as there is a limit to the degenerating effects of such habits on all parties, from the manufacturer down to the consumer. I believe the day is not far distant when there will be a turn in the tide, and, instead of department stores soliciting charge accounts, there will be a campaign in favor of cash customers.—Roger W. Babson, in Saturday Evening Post of Nov. 29.

BOSTON IS SITTING ON FIRETRAP TINDER BOX, DECLARES COMMISSIONER COLE

tive, not now while everybody is excited and all sorts of investigations have been started.

"The bill that we propose to put before the Legislature will be even broader than that of last year. It will call not only for the fire commissioner to issue permits relative to explosives, but will call for the transfer to the fire commissioner of the powers now held by other city and public bodies relative to inspection of premises where explosives are kept.

"The proposed bill will also provide that the fire commissioner shall have mandatory power and authority regarding fire hazard rules and regulations throughout the city.

"The bill will further provide for fire drills in theatres, public places of amusement and public and private schools.

"In fact, complete proper safeguards to the present and maintained about or over skylights.

"A fine of $50 is provided for the violation of the law, and in case of continued violation a fine not exceeding $10 a day for the period that such violation is continued after notice to the defendant that he is violating the law has been given.

Need Chief of Public Safety.

"This is a bill that should be passed without hardly any debate, passed on its merits, and then the fire department will know for a certainty what it is fighting when it gets to a fire.

"I believe this city should have a Commissioner of Public Safety. Under him should come the fire department, police department, penal institution department, building department and the police department. Give this commissioner the power to cope with the situation and hold him responsible for the enforcement of the laws. You would then have an order carried out when it was issued and report that it had been carried out on record.

"The city of Philadelphia has such a system and it is working well.

"The percentage of fire loss in Boston is higher today than in any other city in the country. We are better situated than a small proportion of us think we have been for some years, but Boston is sitting right now on a tinder box in regard to firetraps and the loss of life.

"Laws should be passed and then enforced. The fire department lacks power to enforce the laws although we have a system of inspection which is as good as any in this country. We report what we find either to the police, building department, department of wires or the board of health.

"What is the result? Four inspections take place, one by every one of these departments. It is not efficiency; it is not good business; this system of duplication."

Half the time of the Boston Fire Commissioner is taken up reporting defective conditions to different departments of the city under whose authority they are placed, or disapproving licenses and permits regarding fire hazards which have been issued by other departments.

"What a farce from a business standpoint.

10,000 WOMEN TO WAGE WAR ON CITY FIRETRAP DANGER

Beginning today 10,000 working women and girls in Boston were turned into amateur detectives in an anti-firetrap crusade, as a result of the Arcadia lodging house horrors in which twenty-eight men lost their lives.

The Boston Women's Trade Union League distributed that number of circulars through the manufacturing district today, appealing to women and girl workers to report any lack of proper fire protection in their places of work.

If necessary, antidote trap strikes will be ordered to secure suitable fire prevention and protection.

Mrs. William Z. Ripley, vice-president of the league, and wife of Professor Ripley of Harvard College, explained today that this step seemed to be the only way to secure adequate protection for hundreds of feminine workers who are exposed to fire danger.

Every woman and girl at work in a building not properly protected against fire is urged to send a plain statement of the facts to the Boston Women's Trade Union League.

No Quarter to Firetraps.

The members of the league, made up in equal parts of women of wealth and women wage workers, are determined to wipe out of existence every firetrap in the manufacturing districts of the city where women and girls are employed.

Following the death of twenty-eight shop victims at the Arcadia lodging house, they are not content to trust in the city officials to bring this about.

Instead of waiting for the slower-acting machinery of law to furnish protection to their sex in the manufacturing district, they now purpose taking the law into their own hands.

In the event of complaints being received by the league that, after investigation, show the existence of firetrap dangers to women and girl employes in any manufacturing establishment the league will demand the immediate abolition of such dangers.

If this demand is not complied with, and providing that the municipal authorities do not force the installation of the desired safety devices to protect the women and girl workers in the meantime, the league will strike every such establishment and throw a line of pickets around the place to prevent the employment of still other workers under the conditions obtaining.

That the league will have the united backing of the trades unions of the entire city in this fight, if such strikes are found to be necessary, is said to be an assured fact. Here is their circular-appeal to the women and girl workers, being passed out today.

The Appeal.

Do you work in a building that is properly safe from fire? Are the doors kept locked during working hours? Do they open easily? Are the windows screened or barred? Is there easy access to the freight elevator? Is there a sufficient number of fire escapes on every floor, easily accessible? Are there combustibles near boilers or engines, and of what nature? ——— name of firm?

———, address?

Please fill out and return to the Boston Women's Trade Union League, No. 7 Warrenton street, city.

Mrs. Ripley of the league's executive force said

Hundreds in Danger.

"Hundreds of working women and girls are in hourly danger of death by fire, and no one seems to have the power to protect them. That is why the league has taken this step," declared Mrs. Ripley.

"Preliminary investigations by the league have shown a number of shops where women and girls are employed that are veritable firetraps. In some instances the doors of the shops are kept locked during working hours. In others, piles of rubbish are thrown against doors that open inward. Cigarette smoking often is indulged in by the men employees of the women workers, which is another menace.

"Our investigators found one shop where the fire escape was accessible only from a window placed so high that one had to stand on a chair to reach the window sill. And I have no doubt that many such places will be found scattered throughout the entire manufacturing district.

"I do not wish to criticise any particular department of the city that would be unfair. The great trouble seems to lie in the fact that there is no centralization of authority. No one has the power to act of his own initiative.

"Cole's Hands Tied."

"The league has been in consultation with Fire Commissioner Cole on this matter for some time. He has done all that he could do to help us. But we found his hands tied by lack of legislation in a large number of instances. He simply couldn't give us the protection we wanted for those working women and girls because he had no power to act under the law.

"The Women's Trade Union League is simply trying to safeguard the lives of women and girls at work in buildings not properly protected against fire," said Miss Mabel Gillespie, secretary of the league.

And the only way in which this can be done, under the decentralization of authority now existing, is by an appeal to the workers themselves.

"Under present-day conditions the lives of hundreds of working women and girls are jeopardized in the manufacturing district, by firetrap conditions. The law does not give the fire commissioner power to wipe these fire traps of of existence. We find the building commissioner, and the police commissioner are equally tied up with legal restrictions.

"This being the case, the league was compelled to act, so we are appealing to the workers to co-operate with us in a city-wide campaign to do away with fire traps in the manufacturing district."

COUNCIL TO ACT ON FIRE TRAGEDY AT SPECIAL MEETING

Fire prevention and protection, with special reference to the Arcadia lodging house disaster, were uppermost today in the minds of the City Council members, preparatory to a special meeting tomorrow to take decisive action on this latest aspect of the fire hazard. The Councillors have unofficially looked into the Arcadia holocaust, but have yet to receive official reports.

The meeting will be an especially important one for the Council's committee on fire hazard, and it is expected that much business in connection with the general lodging house conditions of the city will be referred to this committee.

The question of responsibility for the Arcadia lack of fire equipment was vigorously discussed today.

Mayor Fitzgerald explains that Moses H. Guiesian, owner of the Arcadia building, cannot be held for failing to put more fire escapes on the structure unless was sent a notice October 22, ordering him to do so.

Within ten specified tenday period, however, according to the statement of Mayor Fitzgerald, Guiesian appeared before the Building Commissioner, and pleading temporary lack of funds, asked for an extension of time.

This extension was granted, and as no time limit was specified, and as Guiesian had not been served with any other notice in the matter, the Mayor holds him as relieved of any legal responsibility for failure to provide the fire escapes as ordered.

Mayor Fitzgerald made a second tour of lodging houses accompanied by officials of the Health and Building departments At No. 37 Green street he found ninety-two lodgers listed where he had given orders for seventy as a limit. The Mayor told the night clerk to close the doors and not open them again, as arrangements would be made to close the house officially. Money back in advance for room payment was to be returned.

At No. 242 Commercial street the Mayor found the upper floor Partitions in two rooms and law sanitary conditions were both condemned at No. 63 Warren street (Washington's Home).

At the Lisbon House, No. 1053 Washington street, His Honor criticised low ceilings and lack of ventilation.

Walsh to Aid Mayor in Fight Against Firetraps

Governor Walsh endorsed today Mayor Fitzgerald's demands for better fire laws, saying

"There is no question that conditions can and should be improved by legislation. As pointed out by Mayor Fitzgerald, there is great need for better fire prevention and fire protection laws, and I shall do everything in my power to bring about the passage of such legislation during the coming session."

I. W. W. Men Head Walkout; Predict General Strike.

Three hundred men, employed in the boilermaking, the riveting and the crane departments of the Fore River Ship Building at Quincy, struck at the request of I. W. leaders today, and a general strike of 3,200 other employes is predicted.

Caleb F. Howard, an I. W. W. leader, headed the strikers today and asserts that the trouble results from the failure of the company to live up to agreements, alleged to have been made several months ago

"Gentlemen: About September 10, 1908, my mother-in-law was taken sick with Catarrhal Pneumonia, which developed into Lung Trouble. In January, when Rev. Wm. Rees, of St. Michael's Church, at Sorrentto, Fla., prepared her for death, he recommended that I get Eckman's Alterative, and see if it would not give her relief. The effect was almost immediate and from that time forward she was better all the time. Suffice it to say she did recover, and is now in good health, weighing twenty pounds more than she ever did before she is a hale and hearty woman.

Yours truly, JOE BRIMMER.

MANSION IS DESTROYED BY MILITANTS

GLASGOW, Dec. 5.—Militant suffragettes today began taking their revenge for the arrest of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who is still held in jail at Exeter. Kelly House, an untenanted mansion at Wemyss Bay on the Firth of Clyde, was burned with $100,000 loss.

Kelly House was one of the finest buildings on the banks of the Clyde. Upon the great lawn a number of cards, bearing suffrage inscriptions, were scattered. One inscription was: "No peace or truce until Mrs. Pankhurst is free."

It is believed that the women responsible for the fire were members of the Glasgow branch of the Women's Social and Political Union, of which Mrs. Pankhurst is president.

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 5.—Although flood conditions had improved in the northern section of the devastated central Texas the flood centre was moving southward today, and lives and property were menaced between Hearne and Richmond.

The heavy rain had ceased today. As the water receded the State troops became more vigilant in guarding against looters. In East Waco today residents returning to their homes reported that hundreds of dollars worth of valuables had been stolen. The total number drowned during the flood was reported to be about twenty-five, but it was feared a larger number had perished in some of the outlying sections which were still out of communication with Dallas.

LOVE CODE FOR THE COLLEGE WIDOW IN SUIT

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The love affairs of "college widows" were discussed today during the supreme Court trial of the alienation suit for $50,000 damages brought by Don L. Waddell against Lorine L. Tinkle, a former Cornell University student, now living in Ohio City, Pa.

The young lawyer says the college student won his wife when she appeared as Vera Black in Ithaca a year ago in a vaudeville sketch. Waddell says she was divorced by her husband to marry another woman.

Mrs. Orrin Crane of Ithaca, one of the alleged "college widows" testified for Tinkle. She denied she had told Waddell about a wife's experience with Tinkle, but she did say there was no doubt Tinkle was a "red-blooded enough to be infatuated with Vera."

From Mrs. Crane's testimony a code of rules for "college widows to go by" compiled as follows:

"Never accept a college student from his classes.

"Never alienate him from his parents' affections.

"Treat him as though he was weak-minded.

"Forget him after he leaves college."

Mrs. Wadleigh as a witness, forgot many things, and did not seem to tried to absolutely certain letters written by Tinkle.

"Do you smoke cigarettes?" she was asked.

"What do you suppose I smoke, pipes and cigars?" was the reply.

"Have you ever told Tinkle that you were keeping company with other men?" asked.

"Is that your ambition?" she was asked.

"No, I change as life goes on," she answered.

FLEE FOR LIVES IN BROOKLINE FLOOD PERIL

Three and a half million gallons of water, rushing down a steep hill, flooded basements, washed away streets, extinguished fires, undermined foundations and in some instances drove people from their houses, early today following the bursting of a four-foot trunk main at Clinton and Dean roads in the Beaconsfield section of Brookline. The damage is estimated in the thousands.

Emergency crews of the Metropolitan Water Department were rushed to the scene and are at work repairing the broken main, while scores of persons living in the path of the flood are either pumping or baling out water in their cellars.

The break was one of the worst Brookline has experienced. The pipe burst with a roar that aroused people for blocks and for an hour and a half water raced out of the rent in the street at the rate of fifty thousand gallons a minute. The great torrent swept down the hill, over lawns, into basements, under shortings around four houses in the vicinity of the Boston & Albany railroad and flowed off into Brookline creek.

The houses on the north side of Clinton road, between Dean road and Aspinwall road, suffered the most.

The home of J. Nelson Manning at No. 170 Clinton road and that of A. M. Jackson at No. 167 Clinton road and that of Jackson at Clark road directly opposite were seriously damaged. The residents feared the houses might fall.

Mrs. Manning hurriedly dressed and, taking her infant child, hastened across the home of a neighbor. The water under her front door.

The Jackson house on Clark road was one of the worst damaged. The water and earth from Clinton road came down into this house with the great force and flooded the basement and carried away the earth about the foundation. All of these houses will require shoring up. Two years ago there was a break in the pipes and a flood at this same point.

H. P. Cassidy, the BOSTON AMERICAN'S Food Expert, has shown the NEED for being Sure.

Let the children eat candy—but of all things see that it is PURE.

You can't realize what "pure" means until you know how much candy is IMPURE. It often contains harmful dyes, imitation fruit flavors, glue, glucose or varnish. Anything to make the product more alluring to the eye or more profitable to the manufacturer!

What, then, do you ACTUALLY KNOW of the candy your children eat?

We have produced, in Kewpie Kandies, a confection that is absolutely pure (Pure Sugar, Pure Honey, True Fruit Flavors, Pure Vegetable Colors—ALL PURE) and have called it after its godfather—that popular, wholesome, clean little fellow, Kewpie.

KEWPIE KANDIES

Made Especially

For Children.

Are GUARANTEED Pure.

Joy for Children

When H. P. Cassidy, the AMERICAN'S Food Expert, who is waging such a vigorous war on impure foods, heard of Kewpie Kandies he said: "That's great if it's true, but I have my doubts about it." Now read his endorsement.

What candy will you permit your children to eat from now on? Impress these on your memory—the name: Kewpie Kandies; the heart trademark of Powell's; the people who endorse the candies; the package itself and this guarantee:

Contain No Glucose

Just Pure Barley Sugar, True Fruit Flavors, Vegetable Colors and Honey

Go to the store today and get a box or several boxes of Kewpie Kandies. On sale in Boston at Filene's, Hovey's, Klein's, Riker-Jaynes, Liggett Stores and at leading Department, Drug and Candy Stores generally. In half-pound boxes, 25c. Each box contains some cute candy "Kewpies." If you cannot secure Kewpie Kandies readily send us name of your dealer.

The Manufacturers

"I have examined Kewpie Kandies and hope for the factory where they are made. I found everything exactly as represented to Powell's Journal. Analysis showed that Kewpie Kandies are pure—that they contain NO glucose and that only true fruit flavors and vegetable colors are used.

"The plant in which Kewpie Kandies are made is a model of sanitation and the manufacturing conditions are admirable."

Most Christmas Money Is First Spent Mentally

Think that over a moment, you merchants of Boston.

Most holiday purchases are determined upon before the stores are ever sought.

Gifts are chosen in the home circle.

And there you must send your suggestions if you are to get your full share of the holiday business.

The Boston American will carry your gift suggestions into the hearts of thousands upon thousands of homes.

Not only that, but it will gain for these suggestions a reading by families able and ready to act upon them.

These families spend Thirty-two Million Dollars a month for the mere necessities of life. Their Christmas gift appropriation alone amounts to Sixteen Million Dollars.

Both figures are conservative estimates based on the American's daily circulation, and allow only $80 per family as the monthly expenditure for necessities, and $40 for Christmas gifts.

A Minimum Total of $48,000,000—and every dollar of it susceptible to Boston American advertising's appeal.

Test this tomorrow with an announcement of your regular offerings, supplemented by seasonable gift suggestions.

Tell your merchandise story in the biggest way possible.

And remember that, because they discriminate, Boston American readers buy early.

That's "why" tomorrow!

Discredit Doctor in Trial of Craig

Show He Was Drinking at Time of Killing.

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., Dec. 5—The testimony of Joseph Carr, a white witness in the trial of Dr. William H. Craig for the murder of Dr. Helen Knabe, was discounted today by Attorney Henry N. Spaan, for the defense, when it was shown that Carr spent three hours in a wine room just before the incidents which he described. Carr told of a row which he heard coming from the Delaware apartments on the night of the death of Dr. Knabe. He then fainted that he had seen a man run from the rear entrance of the apartment building.

Attorney Spaan then obtained admission from Carr that he had been drinking with several women in a down town wine room. It was these things happened.

Coroner Dreaman of Indianapolis was recalled to complete his testimony regarding the disorders in addition of Dr. Knabe's room when her body was found.

DENVER TIED UP; 8 PERISH IN BLIZZARD

DENVER, Col., Dec. 5—The great snow storm which today holds Colorado in its grip has already cost eight lives and it is feared that with the restoration of communication the death list will be increased.

A report from Central City, in the mountainous section of Gilpin County, states that eight miners were found dead, parts to find two lost men perished in the blizzard. The snow reaches a depth of two to five feet and is drifted deeper in the great canyons.

The storm today reared through Denver at a terrific speed. Automobile and wagon traffic is impossible and street car service has been abandoned for sixteen hours. Passenger and freight service on all roads entering Denver is known as paired.

All schools are closed. In the Southern Colorado coal strike district, the storm has especially severe. Both troops and striking miners, who are housed in tents are suffering greatly. Deliveries of coal and food supplies in Denver have ceased.

FRATERNITY LEADER DENIES MEMBERS UP HIS SLEEVE SAYS SIGNED WITH FEDERAL LEAGUE

"WHITE HOPE" QUEST GRAND EXALTED EVIL OF RING, DUE TO PROFUSION OF MANY WORKERS

FULTZ DENIES PLAYERS HAVE TURNED OUTLAW

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—President David L. Fultz of the Baseball Players' Fraternity today denied that a number of major league ballplayers, members of the organization of which he is head, had turned outlaw and had signed contracts to play with clubs in the Federal League during the coming season.

Fultz further stated that the Federal League form of contract had not yet been passed upon by the advisory board. If it is approved, the players are free to do what they like in regards to joining the organization, he said.

His statement on the subject follows: "I do not believe the report that a number of players in organized baseball have signed with the Federal League, for the reason that 95 per cent. of the players in the four larger leagues have stated to me personally that they would not sign with anyone until contracts satisfactory to the fraternity were procured.

"As the advisory board has not yet passed upon the Federal League contract, and as no agreement has yet been reached with organized ball, any player who signs a contract with either faction at the present time will be considered to have committed an act of hostility to the fraternity which may amount to cause for expulsion.

"We understand that the Federal League contract, which will be submitted to us within the next week, will comply with all our requests; if so, the fraternity will place no obstacles in the way of the players signing when the proper time comes, if they think the move a wise one.

"A few of the players who have signed already and a number more may have agreed to do so when the contract is approved, but I don't think the slightest doubt in the mind of any member of the advisory board that the players with few exceptions will remain absolutely loyal to the fraternity, and will follow out the plan agreed upon several months ago."

'WHITE HOPE' QUEST EVIL OF THE RING

By DAMON RUNYON.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Our new somewhat flagging national pursuit known as the quest of the "white hope" is responsible for a great many evils.

In the first place it is responsible for the "white hope," which is the Grand Exalted evil of the whole order.

It is responsible for such hilquites as the bustle, as you might call it, to keep from calling it something worse, between Messrs. Morris and Willard at Madison Square Garden the other night. It is responsible for the sad condition of the heavyweight division of the boxing game.

Old-timers tell us that there was never before a period in the history of American boxing when the king row of the battle board was so overrun by mediocrity as we understand the matter, what the heavyweight fighting division needs more than anything else at this time is a batch of heavyweights who can, and, moreover, who will, do a little fighting and who are in no way "white hopes."

One Will Answer Demand.

If a batch is unobtainable, one or two will answer until the market improves.

A gentleman who is something of an authority in these parts was talking about it the other night, punctuating his utterances with sorrowful sighs. He is a man whose memory dates back to the time of Sullivan and such, and who has seen all the big men of the past and present in action, right down to Messrs. Morris and Willard, although he is trying to keep this last a secret.

The whole trouble with our present crop of alleged heavyweight fighters, aside from the fact that they are not fighters, is that they are forced growths," he said. "They have nothing in the world but size to justify calling them heavyweights, and they are simply the product of persevering press work more than anything else. Why, a few years ago a promoter would have laughed at the idea of matching men with no more experience and no more records than Morris and Willard for a main event at the Garden for the money they drew down."

"Can't Blame Promoters."

You cannot blame the promoters of today for putting them on, however.

They are for an honest reward supposed to be the best of the big men preparing for the heavyweight title, and the public apparently wanted to see them. Morris and Willard are striking evidence in support of my argument that the heavyweight division has come upon mighty evil days. And it's all due to the "white hope."

"After the Fourth-of-what-happened-at-Reno we are not content to let nature take its course in developing them. The white race, felt that we must have a hope, for with size we seem to be in the light of what has happened since that time, I should say we are liable to perish before we find that hope."

Once Famous Altrock Now in Lumber Yard

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Nick Altrock, five years ago one of the best known pitchers in the American League, is now hustling boards and sconling in a lumber yard near the White Sox ball park. Before getting the job in the lumber yard, Altrock was given work by the White Sox ground keeper as a member of a gang scalding the baseball. For this he received forty cents an hour.

Altrock still is a member of the Washington Americans, but he was hard hit by Ban Johnson's edict against comedy on the coaching lines. He will not be with the Washingtons again next season and says he will try to get his arm in shape to perform in the box.

Dooin Offers Kahne in Trade with Reds

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5.—Manager Dooin of the Philadelphia National League Club has telegraphed to August Herrmann, president of the Cincinnati club, offering to trade Dooin and Knabe for Kinker and Groh. Dooin said that he expected his offer to be accepted and that Herrmann will seize the chance to make Knabe manager of the Cincinnati team, a berth which the latter is anxious to fill.

Yale Football Season Has Been Profitable

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 5.—From a financial point of view, the 1913 football season "was one of the best Yale has ever had." The attendance at the Yale-Princeton and Yale-Harvard games is given as approximately 33,000 and 48,000 respectively.

Based on these figures, the statement says, the receipts from these games were about $90,000, one-half of the gross earning of the two games, $180,000. After deductions for expenses it is stated the net earnings from the two games amount to about $35,000. The receipts from the minor games were about $4,000

Jones May Quit Yale to Enter Business

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 5.—Now that the captaincy of the Yale football team for 1914 has been decided, interest shifts to the appointment of the coaching staff for the coming year and though it is generally expected that Hurl Lord Jones will be at the head of affairs here next Fall a report is current in Yale circles that Jones may not be here after all. It is rumored here that Jones is being pressed to take a position in another line of business

JOE WALCOTT "THE GIANT KILLER"
IF THEY WERE TOO TALL FOR HIM HE WOULD JUMP UP IN THE AIR AND HIT THEM
A LITTLE FORLORN FIGURE STANDING IN THE SNOW
Hal Coffman

By HAL COFFMAN.

TEN years ago—in Los Angeles—I saw Walcott training for his fight with Billy Woods. At that time Joe had money—lots of money—diamonds—big diamonds—and everything he wanted.

A little over a year ago I saw Walcott outside in Boston. But what a difference! It was outside a fight club, and as the crowd was filing in, a little black, forlorn, shabby figure could be seen standing near the entrance, hoping that some former friend would take him inside, so he could see the fight, too—undoubtedly the greatest fighter of his class that ever lived and the originator of the saying, "he bigger they is de harder dey fall"—standing outside in the snow because he didn't have the money to go in, where a few years before he had been the hero of the hour.

Just the old story over again of "booze." Here was a man that had made thousands of dollars, until his money earning capacity suddenly stopped one night, when in a brawl with another man, he accidentally shot himself in the hand. After that he went the pace harder than ever and now is a common sight wandering around Boston, but instead of a crowd of admirers telling him what a great fellow he is, no one seems to have much time for him any more.

PACKEY NOT TO SCALE OVER 140 FOR BRITTON GO

By SOL PLEX.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Packey McFarland is taking no chances on his condition for his mixup with Jack Britton before Tom Andrews' Milwaukee club next Monday evening. The smart Irishman is working harder than the fans believe. He'll be fit and ready when he sticks his smiling countenance under the ropes and stripe for the struggle. What is more, Manager Emil Thiry says Patrick will not weigh over 140 pounds. Emil talked while Packey was on the rubbing table in the Nate Lewis gym, after his workout. He said:

"What about all this talk that Packey will weigh close to 150 because this match is at catch-weights? That is ridiculous. He would be in bad shape if he weighed that much. He's getting ready for this fellow and he won't be an ounce over 140. Britton will be within a pound or two of that. The fight should be as good if not better than the one they dished up in New York."

Emil was in rather good spirits. He was leading the remainder of Packey's managers in the race for the honor they all claim.

Ike Bernstein was present, and so were the two Johnny McFarlands, one a brother and the other a cousin of Packey. But Emil ruled the camp. Hence his smiling visage.

Asked what the remainder of Packey's managers intended to do on the night of the conflict Thiry said:

"Those fellows will swing the towels and carry the resin, the manager, will whisper words of advice in Packey's ear between rounds."

Promoter Andrews has arrived in town with a batch of fight tickets which he left to be sold at the usual places. He has sent transportation to Britton and Ivan Morgan, and they are expected out here in a couple of days. Then there will be plenty of interesting chatter for the glove fans to read.

Fred Lake May Place Club in Manchester

It was learned today that Fred Lake, new owner of the New Bedford, New England League franchise, would probably place his club in Manchester, N. H. Fitchburg is another place that he has in mind, but if satisfactory arrangements can be made with the directors of the Mill League in Manchester he will most likely locate in that city. It is understood that the Mill League people strongly object to the introduction of New England League ball into Manchester.

British Poloists Ask for June Dates; U. S. Will Agree

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Much to the surprise of everyone concerned, the 1914 polo challenge of the Hurlingham Club of London to the American Polo Association requests that the first of the matches, if accepted, be played not later than the first of June, so as to enable the Britons to return to their native soil in time to compete in the championship cup matches there. It has been learned on good authority that the challenge will be accepted and the matches played to suit the Englishmen.

Steve Kennedy to Box in Paris Rings

Jim Coffey, the Lawrence boxing promoter and manager of Steve Kennedy, announced today that he intends to take Steve Kennedy to Paris the latter part of the month. He also stated that before he goes abroad he would like to have Kennedy box Eddie Murphy and Marty Baldwin, as he is sure that Steve, in his present condition, can lick both of the above classy lightweights.

Loses Captaincy by His Own Vote

"Chick" Vaughn elected Howard Read captain of next year's Haverhill High School football team at the annual election. Vaughn and Read were tied on the first ballot. Vaughn, because of injuries received on the gridiron, was unable to be present, and therefore was ignorant of this. He telephoned his vote for Read and defeated himself.

Vanderbilt Cup Boat to Have Centreboard

BRISTOL, R. I., Dec. 5.—The American's cup defender candidate to be built here for the Vanderbilt syndicate will have a centreboard, though it will be of keel type. This fact developed today, when the keel plate castings just moulded here seem to be shaped to provide for a centreboard. No cup defender since the Vigilant of twenty years ago has had a centreboard

Talk Yale-Chicago Game for Next Fall

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 5.—Walter Camp, Yale's veteran athletic adviser, has left for Chicago and the rumor was received that before his return the matter of a Yale-Chicago game next fall will be discussed. His trip is primarily for business, but it is known that he will meet several football leaders in that city, and it is reported here on high authority that prospects of the proposed game will come into the talk

Y. M. C. A. WILL OPEN NEW TRACK DECEMBER 12

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.

The Boston Y. M. C. A. will open its new building to the public on December 12. On that date it will stage an open athletic meet for athletes of Greater Boston. The events will be run on the new Y M C A track, which is a twelve-lap affair and will have a circle of all of the prominent athletes in the Y. M. C. A. will enter its crack team for the meet.

The events will be a fifty yard dash, 440 and one-mile runs, running high jump, three standing broad jumps, a one pound shotput and relay race.

In addition to the B. A. A. entries Massachusetts Institute of Technology will enter a number of men and several Harvard athletes will compete in the field events.

Hannes Kolehmainen, the great little Finnish runner of the Irish American Club, will not be a starter in the National cross country championship on Saturday. This will give Kramer, his great rival, a chance to win, as he is in fine shape The absence of Kolehmainen will seriously hurt the chances of the I. A. A. C. The rivalry between the New York and Irish-American clubs is established in all open competition that is held in New York or elsewhere

* * *

St. Louis athletic interests are planning to bid for the next American athletic championships in track and field events. It is to be hoped that no such occurrences as the last championship meet of this class will be repeated at the next year. Athletic interests in Boston must get together some day and arouse enough enthusiasm in these games to bring them to this city.

B. C. High Track Team Seeks Date with Commerce

Manager John Murray of the Boston College High track team is having difficulty in arranging meets for his squad and is anxious to take on any of the local high schools during the coming season.

The complaint recently registered by Commerce that the management was having trouble arranging meets with the Boston high schools brings out the fact that Murray offered a date to the Boy High school over two months ago without it being accepted. He is anxious that his boys try conclusions with the Commerce athletes

The Boston College boys are a likely squad containing nearly all last year's star organization. The relay team will lose Hiller differity in taking a string of victories last year in force

Joe McCarthy and Thomas Reilly are the star members of the squad. Two new entrants at the school who are track candidates are Walter Whalen, the hurdler and high jumper, and Joe Conick, the sprinter, both of whom were stars of last year's Boston Latin School track team.

Mabel Herbert Urner's Great Series:

Their Married Life

Helen Sits in the Pouring Rain to Watch a Muddy, Ferocious Game of Football

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

"O-H, he's hurt! He's hurt!" Helen clutched Warren's arm in quivering excitement.

A murmur of horror rippled through the packed stands as both teams bent over the unconscious player, whose muddstained jersey bore the black and yellow Princeton stripes.

Now a trainer came running out with bucket and towels. A brief hovering over the injured man and he was carried from the field.

"May not be hurt much," commented Warren. "Probably just knocked the wind out of him."

The substitute who was rushed on was given a rousing cheer by the Princeton stands.

"Rah, rah, rah.
Tiger, tiger, tiger,
Sis, sis, sis,
Boom, boom, bah.
Princeton, Princeton, Princeton!"

And the game went on. To Helen there seemed something almost heartless in this swift forgetting of the wounded player.

Hayward's quarterback now made a brilliant forward pass, and there was a wild shout from the Harvard stands. But their glee was quickly changed to chagrin when the umpire ruled:

"Harvard, penalized fifteen yards for holding."

"What does that mean?" whispered Helen, as the white flags along the sidelines were moved back.

"Loss fifteen yards," muttered Warren impatiently.

This explanation was not illuminating, but Helen felt the excitement, even if she could not understand the plays.

Breathlessly she leaned forward as the tall, blonde-haired captain of the Tigers caught a long punt, and with best head tilted down the field.

"Baker! Baker!" yelled Princeton. Then came a groan as he slipped and fell in a treacherous mud. He struggled to his feet, but was quickly downed.

TOO MANY QUESTIONS

"Rotten interference!" muttered Warren.

"Interference?" repeated Helen. "Does that mean——"

"For Heaven's sake let me on the question and watch the game."

There was a roar of protest from the whole amphitheatre, as one of the Princeton men came up from a scrimmage minus his jersey. It had been literally torn off. Bared to the waist, he stood there in the centre of the field, the white skin of his splendid muscular body in startling contrast to his mud-blackened face and hands.

The rain, which had been holding off, swept in an occasional sudden gust, some down in sheets.

"No, umbrellas!" shouted some one from the back of the stand.

But in defiance of this warning several umbrellas were raised.

"If others have them, I don't see why we can't," protested Helen. "My hat will be ruined."

"No business to wear that hat to a football game," growled Warren, as he reluctantly raised the umbrella. "Told you not to fuss up."

"Well, we might as well go home," promptly complained a woman behind them. "We can't see a thing."

Then a man's voice: "I didn't pay two dollars a seat to sit behind anybody's umbrella."

"Know they'd set up a howl," said Warren, closing the umbrella with a vicious snap. "I'm not going to make a nuisance of myself for your fool hat, Helen," taking off his handkerchief, "cover it with this."

But the rain which now came down steadily did not materially dampen the enthusiasm of the 20,000 spectators. Some of the women covered their hats with programs and handkerchiefs, but most of them sat with their eyes glued on the game seemingly unconscious of their ruined finery.

At the thickest of the downpour Brickley kicked a field goal from the 25-yard line, making the first score.

With a mighty yell the Harvard rooters sprang to their feet and hurled up their hats, unheeding the pelting rain on their bare heads. Now, for five minutes they shouted themselves hoarse, while down front the substitutes hugged themselves and each other.

The field was growing more slippery. In the centre, where most of the play had been, the mire seemed ankle deep. It was almost impossible to distinguish the teams, for the color of their jerseys could not be seen through the coating of mud.

ANYTHING GOES

Again the man with bucket and towels ran up. Hurriedly he sponged off the mud-smeared face of one of the players.

"Oh, look—they're drinking from the same bucket!" exclaimed Helen, as he lifted out drinks to the panting, thirsty players from the very same pail into which he had dipped the sponge.

"Anything goes in football," muttered Warren.

In the next desperate muddy melee Hayward got short—and encouraging cheers he flung off to the side line, while a substitute shed his red blanket and rushed on to take his place.

"Watch 'em wipe their hands on that fellow's clean jersey," grinned Warren, as the players promptly took advantage of the substitute's dry back to wipe off their wet, muddy hands, that they might get a better hold on the slippery ball.

These little incidents were amusing only to the onlookers, for the teams were too desperately in earnest over their grim struggle to see any humor in what they did.

At last came the intermission and the weary, muddy, bruised and battered warriors retired from the field for a 15-minute rest.

It was still raining, but nobody seemed to care. Every one was already drenched, so it did not matter.

The Princeton students broke into the swinging tune of "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," while their cheer leader threw down his megaphone to beat, wave and press the time on the field before them.

Helen had never heard organized college singing, and she was entranced by the booming, deep-throated volume of sound.

Then the Harvard men sang by their brass band, burst out in a rollicking tune which set every one swaying and tapping their feet.

The Princeton leader had seemed restless, but this white-breasted boy who danced to and down before the Harvard stand, wildly shook his arms, waved his arms, and almost turned somersaults in his frenzied effort to get snap and vigor into the song.

"There's some leading," commented Warren. "That fellow knows how to get the most out of his men."

Almost listless seemed the next Princeton song, after the dash and vim with which the Harvard rooters had fairly belowed out their chorus.

Intermission over, the players with scrubbed faces and clean jerseys came running back on the gridiron.

Helen shuddered at the much savage play of the first period, but how both teams seemed possessed with a reckless ferocity. Again and again they rolled in their mud in desperately tough scrimmages.

"Dig through 'em, Princeton! Break their blasted nucks!" shouted an excited supporter.

From now on the game was fast and furious. There were many fumbling and darling plays, but with a water-logged ball and a footing inches deep in mud neither side could score.

When time was finally called the score still stood 3 to 0.

There was a pathetic silence from the Princeton stands as the players left the field, and Helen felt that the Harvard shouts of victory must have sounded very bitter to the defeated team.

SNAKE DANCE

"Now watch 'em do the snake dance," and Warren nodded toward the mass of Harvard students who rushed down pell mell from their seats, hurdled the fence and swarmed over the field.

Heading by their band and under the command of their cheer leader, they began a victorious serpentine march over the gridiron, dancing and yelling like wild Indians.

They also marched under the goal each support, with a whoop, hurled his hat by a etor the bars.

At last a thousand or more Princeton and some went spinning through the air. Most of them were caught as they came down, but many by the others, and they were trampled in the mud.

As they made their way down from the grand stand to the din of Harvard's victorious paeans Helen thought of the defeated team, who had fought just as bravely and who had failed of victory by but one lucky play.

It seemed so small a thing—that one chance kick, on which to base this gloomy judgment. There seemed an element of unfairness in such a game. She tried to squeeze something of this to Warren, but he cut her short:

"Hm, no sentiment to football! A game's a game, and the best team wins."

But Helen, who had refused to wear to the grounds the insignia or colors of either college, now stooped to pick up a discarded Princeton pennant. Boy she could not see trampled on the colors of a team that had fought so valiantly and so well.

Beauty

SOME IRISH SECRETS FROM MISS MAIRE O'NEILL

Miss O'Neill in two charming poses illustrating the Irish type of beauty

Miss Maire O'Neill.

By MAUDE MILLER

"BEAUTY, to my mind, is purely an expression or primitive test in nature," said Miss Maire O'Neill, who has been described by J. B. Yeats, the Irish portrait painter, as the most perfect type of Irish beauty.

"The element of grace, of happiness, of joy in living, is the chief attribute of all beauty in human form, just as it is, for that matter, in the breed of a fine horse or a fine dog.

"I have little patience with the woman who professes beauty without artificial effect. Personally, and it is to us all true that I am a type of Irish beauty, I can only say that I feel very sorry for the girls I have left behind in Ireland. I wish I could show you a real Irish beauty.

"Beauty in a woman, to my mind, is primarily health, strength, freshness, complexion, clear eyes and splendid teeth. The rain and sunshine which sometimes rains upon us in Ireland almost simultaneously are the cosmetics of Irish beauty. It is in the open air, like the Irish heather, that the Irish girl gets all her coloring of color, bright eyes of expression and her clear eyes. No doubt her quick imagination stimulates the changing moods of her face. Beauty in a woman is, after all, not only her smile. It is to be found in her many smiles, in her moments of sorrow, in the desire of her thinking heart.

"Being an actress does not compel a woman to manufacture beauty. The excitement of her role and the agility of her movements are also part of the outdoor life so dear to the Irish people.

"Though the Irish girl has her share of spiritual enjoyment and spiritual rebuke, I rather think of all the women in the world she is nearest to the heart of every day happiness. A joyful, wise, intentional hankering of the joy I feel when I wake up in the morning and know that I am alive. I am a savage in all the simplicity of nature that is given to the woman who runs the ride a horse, walk miles a day, and enjoy these hearty things.

"No beauty is not a thing of paints and powder. It is the color of the sky in the eyes of the Irish girl, under the night shade of her black hair, which gives her the right to be called beautiful."

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

YESTERDAY afternoon Pa came home early from the office & Ma said, 'Oh, dear, I am so glad You calm home early; now you shall have a chance to meet Mrs. Wheedington Wolmrite, the poetess.

BUSINESS AND FINANCIAL NEWS

EDITED BY EXPERTS

Latest in Today's Stock Markets

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

By afternoon stocks were irregular as to price and trading conditions had changed but little from what prevailed early in the day. In Boston, New Haven was off ⅝ and Boston & Maine had lost a fractional gain and was selling unchanged. Boston & Maine preferred touched a new low at 61 yesterday. It sold at 62 today. Boston Elevated was strong and after making 90 3-4 reversed with at the end of last week were below the legal limit. This caused a reaction in the stock market when it appeared probable that that prices would close at the highest level of the day. The result was that most gains were lost. One view of the sudden rise in the call rate is that it was renewed intimation by banks that they are got at present prepared to finance an important speculative movement.

Price Range Was Lower.

Although markets were rather steady at the opening there was a downward tendency for prices, and at the opening in New York most all important issues were quoted lower. There was no recovery of consequence during the first hour or in the last half of the forenoon, but declines appeared small. Uncertainty as to what would develop in the money market restricted operations. It was agreed that formerly a bank statement would be unfavorable.

By afternoon in London American stocks had below parity and buying in them was narrow. There is fear at that centre the Continent will draw more gold from it and rate there may soon be firmer for the balance of the year. There is an inclination there to sell stocks upon any advance. In fact, prices on this side obtained no support from abroad.

Big Market Fairly Active.

Trading was quite active in the first hour in New York, share transactions totalling about 91,000 shares. In the next much less business was done. Call money opened at 6 per cent. and soon advanced a little.

Known movements of money for the week ended yesterday indicate a loss in cash by New York banks of $5,315,428. Direct shipments by express were the largest in some time, while receipts from the interior were the smallest in weeks. Banks gained $2,701,000 from the country and lost $8,216,000 to the subtreasury.

Trading in Steel was of magnitude although its price range was small. Copper issues were adversely affected by a substantial decline in London warrants at the opening. They had made a partial recovery at the close. It was reported that electrolytic was being quoted at 14½ cents a pound on the Continent and at 14.60 cents in London. It is understood there were sales at 14¾ cents by small dealers in New York yesterday but no business of consequence is known of for today. For the week ended yesterday copper exports incorporated 4,821 tons.

Some of the selling of Steel this morning was said to originate in Boston. Other transactions on that side were attributed to an investment which sold 15,000 shares recently at a lower level and is now realizing profits. One rumor about American Can is that insider interests have no desire for an upward movement in this stock at present.

New Haven Meeting.

The executive committee of the New York, New Haven & Hartford road held a meeting at 1 o'clock this afternoon and before it began it was announced that earnings for October would be stated at its conclusion, as well as the date for a special meeting of directors to act upon the dividend rate. "The rate was discussed by the executive committee this afternoon and directors will ratify what is recommended by the former. It is expected that there will be a reduction from 1½ to 1 per cent. in the quarterly rate.

Higher Call Money Checked Trading.

Speculation in New York was checked yesterday afternoon by the rise in call money. It went to 8 per cent. in the last hour and persons who had been waiting for a lower rate than had been asked were surprised as well as disappointed. There was little buying in time loans and the general understanding was that the monetary situation is trending towards ease. Now there is enhanced interest in what banks will report tomorrow in their statement for the week ending today.

Requirements in Europe at the end of the month were heavy as was indicated by the bank statements abroad. The Bank of England lost $3,902,000 in gold and the Bank of France $936,000. The Bank of England's loans decreased $8,230,000 and there was an increase of $41,755,000 in Bank of France loans.

In New York yesterday there was heavy calling of loans to strengthen bank reserves which at the end of last week were below the legal limit. This caused a reaction in the stock market when it appeared probable that that prices would close at the highest level of the day. The result was that most gains were lost. One view of the sudden rise in the call rate is that it was renewed intimation by banks that they are got at present prepared to finance an important speculative movement.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome, first about the meat of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast; continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

WOOLEN MILLS CROWDED WITH RUSH ORDERS

Fine woolens and worsteds today are listed two per cent. higher in price for future delivery, and a number of the independent mills are so crowded with Spring orders that prospective schedules for the employes are known to be under consideration by some of the small woolen mill managements.

Calamity prophets in the jobbing and wholesale branches of the trade are at a loss to account for these unfailing signs of prosperity when, according to their former "industrial dope sheets," the new tariff and the proposed currency law ought to depress business, prices down, and close every small woolen mill gate the country over.

That no sane mill agent would dare increase the price of manufactured woolens and worsteds if the tariff were sure to cripple American mills, and throw the bulk of the trade to foreign countries, is freely admitted on all sides.

As a matter of everyday business knowledge, the exact opposite would be true. Under the mill managements were brought fast to face with such a condition, they would be forced to effect economies that would result in the restitution of materially lower prices in the future, or be driven to the wall by foreign competition.

The additional fact that a number of the independent mills are now increasing their Spring orders, and that some of them will be forced to increase the length of the mill owners' day to handle accepted contracts, is even more significant.

Economic stupidity might lead a mill corporation to attempt "shifting the market," but even the most optimistic tariff theorist in the State couldn't hypnotize hard-headed jobbers and wholesalers into placing orders for the future delivery of fine woolens and worsteds, unless there was an excellent chance to dispose of those goods at a fair profit in the immediate future.

The George Mosbeck Woolen Company mills at Plymouth, manufacturers of high grade woolens and worsteds exclusively, is one of the most prosperous of these independent mills today, according to statements made by one of the managers while in this city on business.

Every loom at this mill is being run to its fullest capacity in an endeavor to meet the requirements of the trade, he stated. Despite this fact, orders have piled up so rapidly during the past month that the demand for goods today is greater than can be supplied under the present working schedule.

To meet this unlooked-for rush of purchasing orders, it is said, the George Mosbeck Woolen & Company management will soon be compelled to operate their machinery on an overtime basis, notwithstanding the tariff scare and the supposed tightness of the money market.

Another independent mill reported to be operating at capacity is that of the United States Running Company of Lawrence, also engaged in the manufacture of fine woolens and worsteds. And there are numerous other smaller independent mills engaged in the same trade which are equally prosperous.

USE FILMS IN UNITED SHOE SUIT DEFENCE

Motion picture films showing in action the machines of the United Shoe Machinery Company will be displayed next Tuesday afternoon at the Federal building as part of the evidence now being put in for the defence in the suit brought against the company by the government under the Sherman anti-trust act. A statement to this effect was made by Charles F. Choate, Jr., attorney for the defence.

The trial was resumed today. President Winslow stated that in the year 1898-99 there were 1,060 firms manufacturing shoes and using 1,019 factories for the purpose, while in 1911 there were 1,033 firms, with 1,150 factories. In the former year there was no factory manufacturing above 10,000 pairs of boots a day; in the latter year there was one firm making between 10,000 and 50,000 pairs a day.

He told of the gradual acquiring of the several processes.

Food "Distributors" Get People's Cash

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—It costs 39 cents to distribute $1 worth of food in this city. According to statistics of the bureau of foreign trade of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, 61 cents represents the cost of the food to the farmer at the terminal markets here, while the cost of the consumer's dollar is divided between wholesaler and retailer in the process of getting the food to the consumer's kitchen.

The remedy, the bureau asserts, is a co-operation of the food distribution system.

'L' Man Asks More Money for Mails

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Henry S. Lyons, secretary of the Boston Elevated, appeared before the House Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads today to urge increased compensation for the street railway lines for carrying the mails. Mr. Lyons told the committee that the cost to the Boston Elevated for carrying the mails is 50 per cent. more than the amount received and asked that the allowance be increased accordingly.

Plan for $3,500,000 Road Across Maine

AUGUSTA, Me., Dec. 5.—The $3,500,000 Allegash extension which the Quebec Railway Company, recently organized under the Maine laws, plans to construct across Northern Maine, a distance of approximately 110 miles, is part of a proposed continuous electric railroad from tidewater at St. John, N. B., to Quebec.

FACT AND COMMENT IN FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES, Business Editor.

James J. Hill looks for a protracted period of depression.

Yes, I know the newspapers have been describing him as moderately cheerful. When the reporters asked him about the general outlook he evasively replied: "The Northwest supplies necessities such as foodstuffs and lumber. The consumption of necessities will have to continue and for that reason Northwesterners do not look forward to depression."

* * *

But Mr. Hill does.

* * *

Is it not disquieting to learn that the outlook as Mr. Hill sees it is so dark that he dare not express his real views for publication?

* * *

Let me record other stern facts not known to the public:

One railroad alone has begun to cut down its force by 10,000 men.

Other important railroads have similar disagreeable problem.

The number of unemployed flocking to New York, Chicago and other centres is already reaching alarming proportions, although the layoff of men has only begun.

Responsible members of the administration, including President Wilson and Secretary McAdoo, are now alive to the serious nature of the business situation. Certain gentlemen who took an aggressive lead in pounding railroads, trusts and industrial interests are beginning to feel nervous.

Samuel Untermeyer's recent appeal for a modification of attacks upon the business world reflects this uneasiness, the dread that a crisis has been started which may be easily put out.

Certain staunch friends of the administration are urging that as far as consistent with justice, a policy of "let live" and "live and let live" should be adopted and announced as speedily as possible together with a clear cut declaration that the administrations must comport themselves hereafter if responsible officers hope to escape jail sentences.

The Interstate Commerce Commission may, it is believed, be given an influential hint to expedite its decision on the Eastern railroads' application for slightly higher rates.

I hate to have to record discouraging developments. It would given me infinite pleasure to be able to express confidence that there will be no serious amount of unemployment during the next six months. But the handwriting on the wall is too plain to be misread.

* * *

No "altruistic" offer of half a billion Aldrich currency can cure our present malady. Nor would another dose of treasury cash mend matters. The present officials have an amalgam of childish conceptions of the functions and the powers of the Treasury Department as the finite mind of man may ever hope to imagine. They put themselves on the back for acts which merit physical applications of a less mild order. The sooner the Treasury Department is rid of it is more of a fly on the relentless economic wheel the sooner will confidence and distrust the safer will be the outlook for the United States.

* * *

By way of something more cheerful, let me give, exactly as it was written, the following pointed letter:

December 2, 1913.

Business Editor:

Have read your article of the 25th ult., in which you paint the condition of the country in a very gloomy light. I have been in business for many years, and buying goods to the amount of over $200,000 yearly, and find difficulty in getting the merchandise. Some mills are oversold from ten months to a year.

I have spoken to a number of travelling men, and they tell me that their firm keeps them busy selling goods, but they catch up with orders, yet you write that men are laid off for lack of work.

I believe that the capitalists are holding back the money of the country to force the administration to yield to their viewpoint, which is, of course, one-sided.

Knowing your publication to be on the side of fairness to all, I believe that, in justice to your numerous readers, you should not put things in such a pessimistic light.

Trusting that you will give this letter space in your valuable journal, I remain yours truly,

JOSEPH B. KLEIN.

No. 128 Boerum street, Jersey City, N. J.

It is gratifying to learn that one man finds business booming. However, may not the "difficulty in getting the merchandise" be due partly to the tendency of buyers nowadays to lay in reasonable stocks? As for "capitalists holding back money," is it not the case that others besides "capitalists"—even the small investors—are holding back their money, refusing absolutely to advance it either to railroads or industrial companies? If everybody but the "capitalists" would manifest confidence by investing their funds, the "capitalists" would quickly abandon any plan to intimidate the administration—a plan of which I have no knowledge.

May I add that investors might do much worse than buy outright well selected bonds and stocks at current low prices? Clouds do not last forever.

The Real Facts About Hetch Hetchy

The campaign carried on against the proposition to allow San Francisco to get a supply of mountain water from the Hetch Hetchy valley should be recognized for what it is. It is nothing more than a corporation campaign to maintain the grip of an oppressive and inadequate private water monopoly upon the city of San Francisco and to prevent the city of San Francisco from getting good and abundant water under city ownership.

There are no people in the world so proud of the beauties of their State as Californians. There are no people in the world who would be so loath to interfere in the slightest degree with the beauty of any of their State's attractions.

Long before the United States government began to make national preserves in California, the State of California was making State preserves to protect in every way the wonders and natural attractions within its borders.

The Yosemite was a State park long before it was a national park. It was made a preserve by the State of California and was handed over to the nation as a free gift when the nation definitely entered upon a policy of national parks and preserves.

How unreasonable it is, therefore, to assume that these Californians with all their pride in their natural scenery and their care of their State attractions are anxious to injure a State attraction and to that extent to injure their beloved State and their blessed selves.

And yet this general assumption is not more absurd and unreasonable than the specific statement which declares that a beautiful valley will be marred by a beautiful lake.

There is a certain class of citizens throughout this country, and doubtless throughout every country, who may be called chronic opponents. They never originate ANYTHING and they always oppose EVERYTHING.

The shrewd corporation campaign which is being conducted in the interest of the Spring Valley Water Company's private monopoly has brought to its aid this class of chronic opponents. These chronic opponents are opposed to putting a lake in the Hetch Hetchy valley, no matter how much the lake would beautify the valley.

These chronic opponents would be equally opposed to removing a lake from the Hetch Hetchy valley if a lake already existed there.

As a matter of fact, they would have a great deal better argument from the standpoint of beauty and general usefulness for opposing the removal of a beautiful pure water lake from this mountain valley than they have for opposing the locating of such a lake in such a valley.

Ninety-nine per cent. of the people in the State of California are actively in favor of allowing San Francisco, the great central city of the State, to secure an adequate supply of pure water from the Hetch Hetchy valley.

As a matter of fact, the only opposition to the project is inter-corporation selfishness on the one hand and ultraconservative sentimentalism on the other hand.

Los Angeles has been allowed to take its water in the mountains from the Owens River. Seattle has been allowed to take its mountain water from the Cedar Lake and river in the Cascade Mountains. San Francisco asks only what has been granted, and properly granted, to other cities, and what is doubly necessary to San Francisco because of San Francisco's pressing needs and because of the great difficulty of securing a sufficient quantity of water elsewhere.

A righteous cause always eventually wins. Therefore, sooner or later, San Francisco will be allowed to get its water from the most natural and reasonable source, which is the Hetch Hetchy valley.

But there are potent reasons why this permission should be given sooner and not later.

San Francisco has not at the present day sufficient water to meet the needs of her population.

In the outlying districts the housewives cannot get from the water taps the fluid for ordinary domestic purposes. There is no opportunity for growth in the suburbs.

The Spring Valley Water Company, holding a monopoly of the supply and charging more for water than is charged in any other city in the world, has admitted by scare advertisements and drought regulations that it cannot meet the demand.

But if this is the present condition, what of the immediate future?

San Francisco has just begun to grow. She has recovered from her great disaster of 1906. She is practically rebuilt.

And almost at this touch of time, the Panama Canal is to be opened to the world. Through that canal thousands and hundreds of thousands of men and women are to pass, seeking California, the new Hesperides.

A large proportion of these thousands have San Francisco as their goal. There they expect to make their homes.

But what hope have they of establishing themselves and their families in a city where the suburbs are denied water, or where homeseekers are met with water-famine notices, declaring that a great thirst is impending and that drought has claimed the city for its own?

Even should the Senate pass the Hetch Hetchy bill this week the exigencies of delay are many. There will be litigations before the contracts for construction can be awarded.

And when all litigation cobwebs are swept away—when the bonds voted by San Francisco have been converted into gold—when the contracts for the great work of dam building and pipe laying and tunnel boring have been awarded—there will be from four to six years that must pass in the toil and remuneration of labor before the city can expect to enjoy the pure delights of Tuolumne's cooling flood.

So it is high time that San Francisco's twelve-year struggle for this water privilege was granted. The city hope has been too long deferred. A less courageous community would have been made heart sick.

But San Francisco is undaunted in this struggle as in her days of great disaster. The eye of her hope is undimmed. She has not grown cynical or sour during her years of expectancy.

She is still confident that the Congress of the nation will do her the simple justice she requests.

She submits that the Hetch Hetchy was first suggested as her natural reservoir site by the unbiased scientists of the Geological survey.

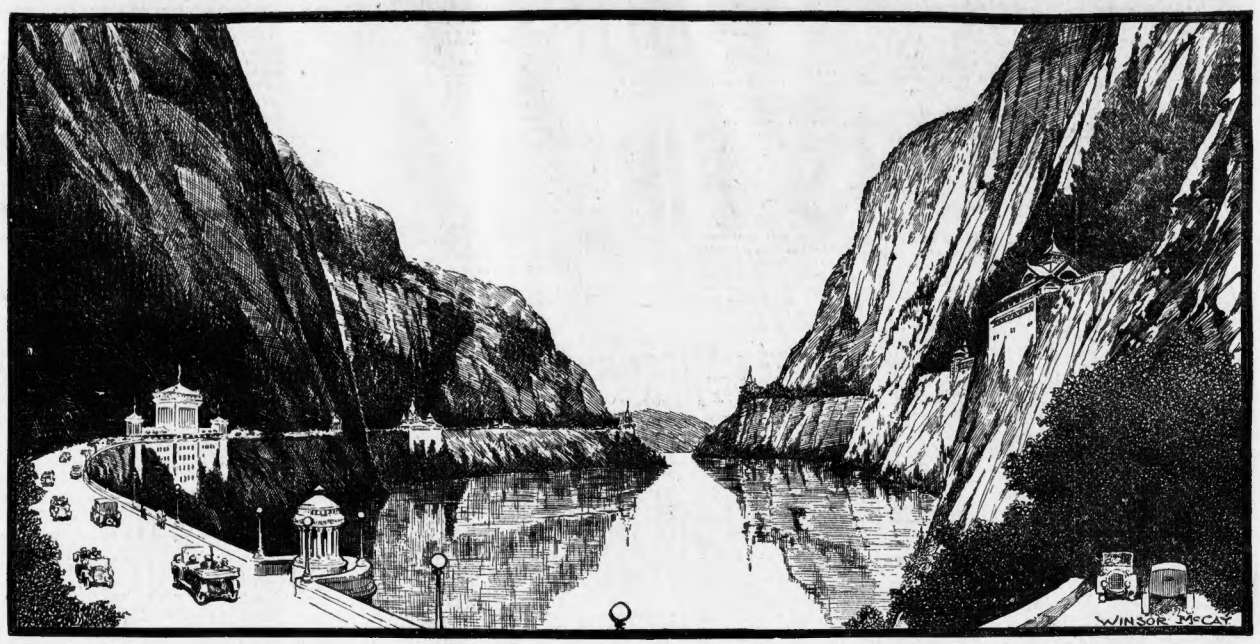
She offers the testimony of the most eminent army and civilian engineers that the Tuolumne supply is incomparably superior to all other sources in the matters of cost, desirability, and the proportion of general good to individual harm.

And she points to the men and women of the land who are earnestly and unselfishly supporting her desires as proof enough that those desires are honest and that her needs are urgent.

To reopen the discussion would merely be to arrive eventually at the same conclusion. Why delay further? Is not twelve years sufficient time for investigation and discussion? What more eminent engineers can pass on the problems involved than those who already have made their figures and spoken their minds? Is there another project offered that would not engender sharper animosities?

The United States Senate, with due consideration for the needs of the people of San Francisco and the desires of the people of California, with due regard for the comfort and convenience of the visiting public of our country and of foreign countries, with proper consideration for the dignity of our people as the host of visiting nations, should pass the Hetch Hetchy bill promptly, and pass it in an open-handed, open-hearted American manner.

Does This Beautiful Lake Ruin This Beautiful Valley?



The AMERICAN Does Not Believe There Is a Conspiracy to Force the Resignations of State Officials, So Their Places May Be Filled Before Mr. Walsh Takes Office

The AMERICAN does not believe the story that has gained currency within the last few days that there exists a conspiracy prematurely to empty those places in our courts and elsewhere which might, in the ordinary course of events, become vacant during the incumbency of Governor-Elect Walsh.

It was whispered about in Worcester that the resignation of the Clerk of the Municipal Court was almost enforced upon the late Mr. Raymond by those who knew that if the vacancy did not occur before the term of Governor Foss expired Mr. Walsh would surely have a vacancy there to fill.

An organized scheme to take from a lawfully and honorably elected Governor the powers which accrue to his office in the natural course of events is mean and contemptible. No right-minded American would participate in it on general principles, and no intelligent man would participate in it for reasons of the most obvious policy.

In his past appointments Governor Foss showed so broad a conception of our progressive, cosmopolitan Americanism that it seems impossible to consider him a party to any such plans as are now bruited about the State.

If resignations occur with suspicious frequency during the rest of the month, the AMERICAN is confident that Governor Foss will take such action as will place the whole situation above suspicion.

ACTA DIURNA

By CONSTANCE CLARKE

We learn in Sociology
By clear elucidation
That everything we have today
We gain through imitation.

The things we write are not our own,
We owe an obligation
To those who wrote before we came,
Much to our consternation.

We may not plan a hat or gown,
Expecting commendation,
For our ideas are not our own,
We learn through observation.

We may not gaze upon the stars
In quiet contemplation,
It is not given us to find
A brand new constellation.

There's nothing new within the world
That needs an explanation,
This rhyming scheme I've seen before,
It's only imitation.

The Two Sisters

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER IX.

JULIA MARVIN stood by the window looking down into the lamp-lit street. Her face was very pale. Caryl lay, face downward, on the bed where she had thrown herself in tearful protest against returning to "that horrid school." On the bureau the little alarm clock ticked away busily.

It was Julia who spoke first. She had the baffled sensation of one who, while understanding the attitude of another, feels in herself no sympathy with it.

"Caryl," she said dispassionately, "instead of lying there like a five-year-old child suppose you sit up and tell me what is really the matter."

No reply came from the prostrate girl except a strangled sob.

"Sister, dear," ventured Julia more gently, crossing the room and laying a caressing hand on Caryl's shoulder, "don't let us quarrel. Sit up now and tell me all about it. I did not mean to scold—but," with a sigh, "it's been a tiresome day and I'm rather cross, I'm afraid."

"Well, that's no reason for your taking my head off," declared Caryl with the violence of injured pride. Yet she stopped crying and sat up.

"I wish, Julia," she said, loftily, as she powdered her face, flushed from weeping, "that you wouldn't take that high and mighty 'I-am-ages-older-than-you' tone with me. I'm not a baby and you aren't my guardian. All I said was that I wasn't going back to that horrid old school—and I meant it."

"I think you are going back, dear," rejoined Julia, controlling her voice and manner to calmness.

"And I think I'm not!" flashed back Caryl.

"Why not?" asked her sister. She had learned long ago that with the younger girl a point was gained sooner by questioning than through argument.

"Because," said Caryl, sharply, "I've got a job, that is"—she corrected herself—"a position."

"With whom?" queried the other in amazement.

"With an author," answered Caryl, triumphantly. "I'm to be secretary to Kelley Delaine, the novelist. He 'phoned to the office this afternoon for some one who could typewrite and take slow dictation, and Mr. Jennings asked me if I would like to try the job. I said I would, and I'm going to see him tomorrow. So you see, Julia, even if I do behave like a five-year-old child I am worth rather more than you thought. I'm to get ten dollars a week," she added, proudly.

The girl's tone of superiority fanned the flame of Julia's already smouldering temper. She was tired and hungry and her self-control gave way to a sudden flood of exasperation at her sister's ungracious manner.

"Really, Caryl," she retorted, "your weak attempts at sarcasm are in perfect accord with the rest of your behavior. I think I rather overestimated your apparent age when I said that you acted like a child of five years. Does it occur to you that if you had unbent a little from your foolish dignity, and had not gone deliberately about making a quarrel this evening, this whole matter could have been settled a half hour ago with no hurt feelings on either side? As far as your accepting a position of secretary for anybody is concerned you know as well as I do that you are not capable of filling it."

"Now, Judy, dear," pleaded Caryl with one of her swift changes of mood and temper, "don't be cross! I'm sorry if I was disagreeable to you, but listen. I can typewrite really very well when I try, and I can take slow dictation, and that's all that Mr. Delaine says he wants. It won't do any harm for me to try, any way, and the longer I work the better I will do. So, now it's all settled, isn't it?"

"No, darling, it isn't," answered Julia, gravely. "We don't know anything about this man who calls himself Delaine. He might be almost any one, and"——

"I thought of all that this afternoon," Caryl interrupted, laughing and pinching her sister's cheek. "I asked Mr. Jennings and he said that it was a perfectly all-right position. Mr. Delaine has gotten people from the school before. I'm not such a little goose as you think, Julia. Now please be a dear and say that you do not object to my taking the position. Of course," she added, artfully, "I wouldn't think of taking it unless you approved. Please say yes!"

For a moment Julia pondered anxiously, then she spoke. "Caryl," she said, slowly, "if you really feel that you should take this job, I won't stand in your way. Personally, I would rather you didn't do it, for I realize what you don't, dear, that you are not a good enough stenographer to do the kind of work that Mr. Delaine will demand. You will do better in the long run if you go back to the school for a month or so more. Still, if you feel that you want to accept this opportunity, I will not ask you to give it up."

"Then we'll call it all settled!" rejoined Caryl, quickly. "I'll start in tomorrow with Mr. Delaine."

Lying awake late into the night, Julia stretched out her hand and touched her sister's arm.

"Slipping away from me, dear, aren't you?" she whispered, wistfully, "slipping away."

But no reply came from the sleeping girl, and, as Julia listened, it seemed to her excited imagination that all the street sounds were mingled in an echo of her whisper —"Slipping away!"

WATCHFUL WAITING

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

Our policy is one of watchful waiting.—The Government.

A BURGLAR sauntered through my house, selecting here and there
Such articles as I possessed that he could sell or wear.
His conduct aggravated me, and so I called a cop
And asked him if he wouldn't come and make the burglar stop.
"Dear me!" the officer exclaimed, "that's very irritating,
But for the present I'll pursue a course of watchful waiting."

I met a footpad on the street who contemplated me
And said, "I'm goin' to croak yer, bo, wit' dis here blackjack. See?
I little relished talk like that and cried aloud, "Police!"
Which summoned from another block two guardians of the peace.
"This man is going to kill me, boys," I made some haste to state.
"Too bad," they said. "However, we can only watch and wait!"

I saw a person with a match and perfect outward calm
Deposit in a factory a large scrap iron bomb.
I saw him light the hissing fuse—and yelled across the street
To ask a passerby to stamp the fuse out with his feet.
He ducked behind a neighboring wall, and answered with a smile,
"I can't do anything just now, I'll wait and watch a while."

A mad dog galloped down the road, his jaws all dripping white,
While men and women climbed up steps and trees in shuddering fright.
A hunter with a gun came up behind the savage brute,
While those ahead, perceiving him, implored him: "Shoot! Quick! Shoot!"
"Ah, no," he said, "that would not do," and dodged in at a gate.
"I much prefer to stay in here, where I can watch and wait."
